EASY ROAD TO NORTH POLE OUTLINED BY STEFANSSON

Men of Greeley and Sir John Franklin Expeditions Perished From Hunger With Plenty of Marine Life Beneath Their Feet But Beyond Their Reach

CHAUTAUQUA TENT FILLED TO FULL CAPACITY

Corrected Many Misconceptions Which People in General Entertain Regarding the Far North—Prairies of Northern Alaska Covered by Grass

The Chautauqua director found himself swamped last night with an audience too big to be accommodated with seats in the tent. He explained that an effort had be made, fruitlessly, to rent the needed chairs and after asking his patrons to be patient, introduced the speaker of the evening, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic explorer, without circumlocution.

And the audience accepted him with a sigh of relief, for here was no full dress rehearsal for a dramatic part, no pose, but instead, an unpretending man who soon showed that he was a hater of shams and misrepresentation, who wished only to tell the truth about the part of the world of which we know the least. In a simple, direct, and very clear manner he laid the foundation for his personal experiences by correcting the many misconceptions which people in general entertain about the far north. For the continuance of these misconceptions he blames the school geography which he says is the most widely read work of fiction in this country though the school history is a pretty close second. Said he:

"The common notion is that the north pole is a hard point to get to, but that is very far from being true. It is often spoken of as a frozen desert. The ocean is covered with ice, but when the wind begins to blow the ice begins to move before the wind and there is a great deal of open water. Admiral Peary has estimated that about one-fourth is open water even in midwinter. If the north pole were in the center of this frozen ocean it would be hard to get to, but if you will take a map you will see it does not lie in the center of that ocean but about 400 miles to one side and 400 miles easier to get to. The center of the frozen sea we call the pole of inaccessibility.

"The common idea is that it is extremely cold and that is very far from being true. It is a great deal colder than Southern California, but not very cold as compared with many other places. There is always the question of altitude and distance from the ocean. Around the north pole you

SOUVENIR OF A FATAL AIR CRASH

A letter from Otis A. McKelvie, attorney of Los Angeles, Calif., reached The Lincoln Daily Star, Lincoln, Neb., Monday morning with the edges badly charred, and bearing this rubber stamp inscription on the envelope:

"This letter salvaged from air mail plane which was destroyed by fire at Rock Springs, Wyo., on May 5. POSTMASTER, Cheyenne, Wyo."

Press dispatches on that day told of the fatal crash of the plane driven by Pilot Walter M. Bunting, who was burned to death when his plane overturned and crashed as he was taking off with mail at Rock Springs.

Pilot Bunting had been hurt in a previous crash in Omaha, December 24, while in the mail service. He left a mother and a wife in New Jersey.

The letter was purely personal.

TRUSTEES GIVE $300 TO CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Postpone Action on Cemetery Zoning Ordinance for Two Weeks

PROTEST LOT CLEARING

Ordinances Introduced for the Widening of Brand and Opening of Garfield

Features of the meeting of city trustees last night were the presentation of an appeal for a donation to the local committee of arrangements for the big Christian Endeavor convention to be held here in June. A. L. Baird was spokesman and his plea was reinforced by Charles Ingledue, representing the Chamber of Commerce, and Howard Brown. To such good effect did they talk that the board voted a donation of $300.

Cemetery Zoning Ordinance

Another delegation was from the southern section of the city to inquire the intent of the cemetery zoning ordinance introduced at the last session by President Stephenson. Mr. Bassett, manager of Forest Lawn memorial park, was present and explained the desire of his company to extend their grounds to cover certain property within the limits of Glendale, north of the present cemetery holdings. The board voted to postpone action for two weeks and in the meantime a mass meeting of citizens in that section will be called to consider the proposition.

Brand Boulevard Improvement

Protests against the widening of Brand boulevard to cut off dangerous projection, were submitted in writing by Charlotte Fhister, J. H. Gervais, B. M. Billings, O. S. and Carrie Richardson, none of them being present. Protests denied.

Rest Home Permit

On motion of Trustee Henry, Mrs. Amy Crist was granted a permit to conduct a rest home on Boynton street.

Memorial Day Program

Trustee Ingham was delegated to represent the board at a conference on a Memorial day program to be arranged by the local G. A. R. post.

Auto Truck and Roadster

The bid of Jesse Smith of the Ford agency to furnish the city with a roadster for $603.25 and a Ford truck for $675.29, was accepted by a unanimous vote.

Rabies Case

The report of Health Officer Eckles on a case of rabies was received, and his recommendation that an order be

WEEK'S PROGRAM AT CHAUTAUQUA

The program tonight will be given entirely by the famous Orpheus Four.

Tomorrow (Saturday), at 10 a. m., there will be a lecture by Director F. I. Dexter, on "Mysteries in the Book World."

The afternoon program will be given by the Jugo Slav orchestra of six young men in native costume, who will play their national instrument the Tamburi, giving folk songs as well as operatic selections. They will provide the prelude to the evening program.

Saturday night Tom Skeyhill, who was sent to Russia to investigate the situation there and report back to the American people will give the address.

Afternoon program will begin at 3:30; evening at 7:30.

RESEARCH HOSPITAL HELD OPEN HOUSE YESTERDAY

In Honor of First Nation-Wide Celebration of "Hospital Day" in United States—Guests Are Received by Dr. McNaughton in Spacious Lobby

HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT THOROUGHLY UP-TO-DATE

X-Ray Machines, Well-Equipped Laboratory, Modern Operating Table, Sterilizing Machines and Utensils Make Institution One of Finest in World

The new Research hospital, formally dedfcated on last Sunday to the cause of suffering humanity, kept open house yesterday in honor of the first, nation-wide celebration of "Hospital Day."

The spacious lobby where the guests were received by Dr. McNaughton is a tastefully furnished room, off of which opens the general office on one side, the office of the superintendent of nurses, Miss Grace McKinley, on the other.

The equipment of the hospital is thoroughly up-to-date. The main operating room has the Mayo table, which is considered the very best; the finest of sterilizers are in the sterilizing room; the surgical dressings room, in charge of Mrs. Hornig, adjoins the sterilizing room.

The X-ray room, in charge of Dr. Avey, is equipped with the best of X-ray machines and other instruments and appliances; the obstetrical department is equally well equipped and the laboratory, where Dr. Luccock does important research work, is a model of its kind.

In the utility rooms, bed pans and utensils used in the care of the sick are rendered absolutely sterile by means of the latest sterilizing machines; here, too, are large incinerators where things not fit for further use, bandages or dressings, for instance, are burned.

The patients' rooms, with their cheerful rugs, their restful French gray walls, old ivory woodwork and furniture in harmony, their splendid beds, high ceilings and large windows, which mean plenty of air, are all that could be desired. Some of the rooms for patients have private baths, others have lavatories.

Bath rooms are also found along the various corridors. The wards are just as well equipped as the private rooms, and are commodious and comfortable.

At intervals along the corridors are built-in chart desks, for the convenience of the nurses.

The nursery has made a good beginning. On Wednesday morning, little Miss Gabaig, came to make a few

MEETING OF LADIES OF BAPTIST CHURCH

J. S. Gressit of Yokohamo, Japan, Guest of Honor and Delivers Address

Ladies of the Baptist church held their May all-day meeting on Thursday at the church.

Much good work was accomplished during the sewing session that occupied the morning hours. The usual splendid luncheon was served at noon, when the speaker of the afternoon session, J. S. Gressit of Yohohama, was the guest of honor. Mr. Gressit and his family have been enjoying a furlough in the states and will return to Japan within the next few days.

A feature of the afternoon's program was Mr. Gressit's talk on the work of the Baptist Mission school in Japan and the need of educational work among the people of that country. His work is in the Mabie Memorial school for boys, which is located in Yokohama. When Mr. Gressit arrived at the church Thursday morning, he was delighted to find Mrs. F. R. Boynton, lately of Sendar, Japan, stitching and chatting with the ladies. Across the seas she had often been a guest in the Gressit home, so she and Mr. Gressit exchanged many reminiscences of days gone by. During the luncheon Mrs. Boynton gave a talk on things she had seen and experienced in Japan.

Work Started on Building

Work on the C. A. Wishart garage, 50 by 150 feet, at 231-233 South Brand, began in earnest this morning and it will now be rushed to completion.

WOMAN DOES AWAY WITH ONE HUSBAND

Mrs. Lydia Southard Charged With Having Poisoned One Out of Four

(By International News Service)

BOISE, Idaho, May 13.—Mrs. Lydia Southard, under arrest in Honolulu charged with poisoning one of her four husbands and suspected of doing away with the other three, is the daughter of a prominent resident of Twin Falls. She is about 30 years old.

Insurance company officials say she collected $2500 insurance as a result of Edward Dooley's death, $2500 left by Robert Dooley, $3000 by William McHaffie, $2500 by Harlan Lewis, and a smaller sum through the death of "Baby" Dooley.

When Mrs. Southard, then Mrs. Meyer, tried to collect $10,000 left in a policy by Edward Meyer, insurance agents told her they would hold an autopsy and the woman left without obtaining the money.

It is said here that Mrs. Southard obtained the poison she is alleged to have given her husbands by soaking flypaper in water. The water was then given to the men, it is declared.

DENVER, Colo., May 13.—Harlan C. Lewis and Lydia McHaffie were married in this city on March 10, 1919, according to records at the Denver county courthouse, Lewis gave his home address as Stockton, Calif, and Billings, Mont., as a mail address. He said he had not been previously married. Mrs. McHaffie said she had been married once before and that her first husband was dead. She said her home was in Twin Falls, Idaho. Little could be learned of the woman here.

THOR IRONER IS ALMOST HUMAN

The Thor Ironer has been announced almost mechanically perfect. A table is combined with a cylinder heated either by electricity or gas, the cylinder being under 500 pounds pressure. It is possible with this machine to iron the family wash without reservation from the finest of organdie waists to the working clothes of a mechanic. The ironer is being handled by the Glendale Electric Company and that firm has been giving demonstrations this week to large groups of interested people. The big feature about it is that it costs less to operate than the average electric iron. It is a wonderful labor saver and will solve the domestic help problem to a great extent in many families. Articles that ordinarily take from 15 to 20 minutes to iron by hand can with this machine be done in three to four minutes. Another very fine feature is the fact that it is possible for the operator to sit down to the work. An additional advantage is the fact that there is no pushing or pulling required but the device is electrically controlled.

WHERE AUTOMOBILES CAN BE DOLLED UP

S. A. Davis has announced that he will at once begin the erection of a building on one-half of the lot he purchased recently at 120 West Colorado street. He has already secured tenants for it in the persons of Carl Johnson, who specializes on automobile tops, and Hiram Cox, painter, now located at Montrose. On the other half of the lot Mr. Davis proposes to place an up-to-date auto wash rack, grease racks and a polishing station where automobile can doll up.

TELEGRAPH NEWS IN CONDENSED FORM

NEW YORK, May 13.—Two men today held up the private Italian bank of Anthony Sasson in Brooklyn and robbed the safe of $5000.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The United States shipping board today denied that the government plans to seize vessels owned by the shipping board whose operating companies have acceded to the wage demands of the marine strikers.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—President Harding probably will make the final decision whether federal troops shall be sent into the West Virginia coal fields to quell the disturbances there, it was stated at the war department today.

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Fourteen persons were reported killed and many wounded in street fighting at Morela, capital of the state of Michoacan, during the night. The trouble is said to have started during a manifestation of Catholics against Socialists. The Socialists and their sympathizers were reported to have opened fire upon the Catholics.

LONDON, May 13.—The use of German troops in Upper Silesia to fight the Poles was approved by Premier Lloyd George today. In outlining his solution of the Upper Silesian troubles to the House of Commons the premier declared that "there is no reason for the Allies to object to Germany using her armed forces to restore order in her own provinces."

EAST ST. LOUIS, May 13.—Rev. Guy Kyle, former Methodist preacher, today pleaded guilty in federal court to complicity in the theft of $212,000 from the mails at Mount Vernon, Ills., on January 14. He was sentenced to serve six years. Loren Williamson, cocharged with Kyle, was found guilty by a jury a week ago, was denied a new trial by Federal Judge English and was sentenced to a similar term of years.

HELP EQUIP THE MONTE VISTA HOME

The garden fete to be given tomorrow afternoon on the Marshall lawn, 525 South Central avenue, bids fair to be a grand success, judging by the hearty response which the ladies who are selling tickets are meeting with.

Ladies in charge of booths where candy, ice cream and punch will be sold, are busy today decorating their little shops and getting their wares ready.

A most worthwhile program, which was published in yesterday's edition of the Daily Press, will be given at 2 o'clock. The proceeds of the fete will be devoted to equipping the kitchen at the Monte Vista home for under-nourished children of the county. The kitchen was remodelled through the generosity of Glendale artisans who gave their labor and their precious leisure hours to this work, and its equipment is being supplied by Glendale clubs as well as by the generosity of private citizens here.

Mrs. R. W. Meeker is chairman of the committee having charge of this project, and Mrs. A. H. Montgomery has secured the talent for the program.

TWO FOND HEARTS UNITED IN WEDLOCK

Rev. C. R. Norton was called to Los Angeles Thursday night to officiate at the wedding of Miss Janet Childs to Victor F. Dunsmore, which was celebrated at the Knights of Pythias hall at 230 South Spring street, with about 250 guests in attendance. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion and wedding refreshments were served following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Dunsmore have a good many friends in this city. They will make their home in Seattle, where the groom is engaged in business.

The lecture appears to have been derived from the cnclve, which is found wild in temperate and Southern Europe.

BEAUTY NOT AN ASSET NOR IS LOVE ALWAYS HAPPINESS, GIRL BANDIT SOBS

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 13.—Heart hunger and bodily hunger in a young girl who cursed her beauty, have brought 17-year-old Katherine Zoberlein to incarceration in the Tombs.

Tears filled the deep brown eyes and found their way down the pale cheeks of the slender, trembling girl—cheeks soft and cool as winter roses. The palest pink flecked the almost pure white of her face. There was no subtle play of light in her dark eyes, nothing in her fair features to betoken evil, nothing in her voice that betrayed the siren. Is it any wonder the guardians of the Tombs have characterized her "the most beautiful girl, the most innocent appearing that ever was confined in this prison"?

In her rich, tremulous, child-like voice she told the story of her love for the man who brought her into such early contact with the life of the underworld.

"I love, but it does not make me happy. I know I am beautiful—men have told me so since I was fourteen. I had rather be ugly. I am here because my love for Michael was so great I could not refuse to do anything he asked of me. He asked me to help him rob people. I do not want to be bad. But I love Michael, and he told me to do it. I would have done anything he asked. I think he loved my beauty. I wanted him to love me for myself. Perhaps he did and I did not understand. It seems that almost anyone can touch my heart and make me want to help or please them."

The sweetheart for whom Katherine vows her love is Michael J. Egle, who was arrested a few days before Katherine was found by the police. The police say Michael divulged to them the whereabouts of Katherine without much pressure from them. Katherine refuses to believe Michael "gave her away." She was found in a Brooklyn rooming house where she said she and Michael had been living for three months.

Hunger Led to Robbery

Katherine Zoberlein, the innocent-appearing, is charged by the police with robbery. She is referred to at headquarters as "the girl bandit." She is accused of having lured Simon Darwo into a doorway, where he was accosted a minute later by Michael and robbed. "We wanted food," Katherine gave as a reason for the alleged robbery.

"Though I loved Michael greatly, I yet dreaded to approach the man. I trembled all over, and I was so afraid and so tired. That night we had walked so far, blocks and blocks, I ahead, and Michael following close enough to protect me," she continued in confessing her story to the police.

"We had nothing to eat that day, and but one meal a day for two weeks almost. Michael had no work.

"I told him I was hungry and he said he would find some man who would follow me and then get his money. We had a little glass pistol that was once full of candy, but we filled it with ink to make it look real.

"At last we set out. I could not breathe at first, and I was so cold I felt that I could not go on, but he urged me just a little farther and a little farther."

"I had rather be ugly, and be able to walk from my house to the grocery store on the corner without hearing from every man I pass, 'Hello, cutie. 'Sweetie, how'd you like a ride?'"

Faith Still Constant

"I loved him. He told me to do it I would have done anything he asked.

"And they tell me it was he who told where I was!

"Well, I will not believe it until he tells me himself. They found the address in a memorandum book he carried.

"We were living there under the name given in the notebook. It was easy to find me, and I confessed.

"I do not care sometimes what happens. I love, but it does not make me happy."

Justification for Critic Is Purely Self Conceit

(By International News Service)

BERKELEY, May 13.—Critics get short shift at the hands of Da. Stephen C. Pepper, instructor in philosophy at the University of California.

"A critic today must be either a charlatan or nobody," says the professor in a pungent analysis of the place of the critic in the three-cornered relationship of the buying public, the selling artist and the anomalous critic and declares that the latter thrives because the former two do not trust their own taste, but recognize the existence of a standard which each wishes should be applied before he risks acting on his own judgment.

"Here is the key to the problem," writes the author. "When people buy vegetables, they merely wish to satisfy their hunger, and they buy what pleases them. But when people buy clothes, they want not only to be clothed, but to be clothed correctly. They want two things. They want clothes, and they want knowledge of what is the right thing in clothes. These two wants are satisfied from two different sources. The dressmaker furnishes the clothes, but the critic furnishes the knowledge of what is the right thing".

The buyer has lost confidence in his judgment and seeks the support of authority, thus creating a new want, states Dr. Pepper. This is immediately reflected in the seller, who also loses confidence and also wants the support of authority. Hence the critic dominates the situation.

Very little of the written matter that goes by the name of aesthetics can be called scientific in anything approaching the modern significance of the term, says the author. "It is not built up from the observation of facts but drops down, a luxuriant, bloated parasitic growth from the boughs of metaphysics, full of logical subtleties and cosmic issues, a tangle which only a metaphysician can examine intelligently. To state the situation in cruel simplicity (a knife-edge simplicity that is never quite true), a critic today must be either a charlatan or nobody. The only salvation for honest criticism is the establishment of a true science of aesthetics.

"If the critic can convince himself and others that his personal opinion is better than that of most persons, not because he knows the principles of art as nobody else knows them, but merely because his taste is more sensitive, then he can still conscientiously be a critic today. The one justification for the critic of today is his self-conceit."

Ladies Who Gamble Scored By U. S. Woman

By NEWTON C. PARKE
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 13.—Women past 60 often reach a "second silly stage worse than the period they passed through in their 'teens.'"

This is the sad observation of Mrs. Gladys Gordon, 63, of New York, who is serving a month's sentence in Saint Joseph prison, at Lyons, for passing a bad check, after losing all her money playing roulette at Monte Carlo.

"It isn't the young girls who need looking after so much as the gray-headed 'girls,'" lamented Mrs. Gordon. I'm not the only one. Look about the tables at Monte Carlo any night and you will see far more women who ought to be home with their grandchildren than young girls or even young men. The gambling craze seems to make fools out of women who have passed middle age."

Mrs. Gordon arrived in France several months ago and straightway headed for Monte Carlo. She was well dressed and bore herself with such an air of being accustomed to only the best things in life that the proprietor of the best hotel in town never worried when she fell a little behind with her bill.

For a while she won handily at the roulette tables. Then luck turned the other way and in a few nights the croupiers had swept in not only all her winnings, but the $12,000 she had when she reached Monte Carlo.

The hotel management began pressing her for payment, but she put them off with promises to pay when money arrived from America. The money did not come and finally Mrs. Gordon sold her jewels, paid her hotel bill and boarded a train for Paris.

En route she discovered that she had not enough money to reach Paris, so she descended from the train at Lyons. She picked out a luxurious hotel, but soon found herself at the end of her resources.

An English bank refused to cash a check she presented, so she turned to the American consul. The consul was impressed by letters she showed him and endorsed the check. When Mrs. Gordon failed to make the check good the consul filed a fraud charge against her and she was brought into court. Despite her protestations that she was only penniless because friends in America had failed her and that the check would soon be made good she was sentenced to one month in prison.

THE SCHOOL BOND ELECTION

Mr. Voter: Remember the School Bond Election, May 24, 1921, 8 a. m. to 6 p. m.; polling places, Central avenue school for those living north of Doran street; Cerritos avenue school for those living south of Windsor road; Intermediate school for those living between these two streets. Amount of proposed issue, $199,000.

This amount is absolutely necessary to put our schools in good working condition and take care of the tremendous growth that Glendale has had in the last two years.

Remember that the cost to you is small. If these bonds are voted it will increase your tax rate 15 cents or less on the $100; that is to say, if you are the owner of a home worth $5000 assessed at 40 per cent of its value, the cost to you of these bonds for the first year would be $3.20.

The benefits far outweigh the cost. Do not fail to go to the polls and vote.

SNAG TO OPENING GARFIELD AVENUE

Law Does Not Authorize the School Trustees to Dedicate Acacia Frontage

The easy solution which the city trustees and the trustees of city schools thought they had reached in regard to turning over a portion of the Acacia avenue school grounds for street purposes, in connection with the opening of Garfield avenue, struck a legal snag and a new method of solving the problem was suggested to the board by City Manager Watson at the regular meeting last night, as follows:

"As reported to your board February 24 last, a portion of the Acacia street school grounds is required for the opening of Garfield avenue as proposed. The school board has expressed its willingness to dedicate the ground required for street purposes provided the school property is not assessed to pay any cost of the opening of the remaining portion of the street. Upon investigation further, it was found that the school board has no authority to make such a dedication. Accordingly, it was suggested that the property be advertised for sale by the school board in the manner required by law with the understanding that the city would submit a formal bid therefor just sufficient to comply with the provisions of the law. If this plan is acceptable to the city I understand the school board will proceed to advertise as proposed. It would seem that this is about the only way that this strip of ground can be acquired for street purposes and inasmuch as property holders in that vicinity are very anxious to have these opening proceedings proceed, I would recommend that the school board be requested to advertise the property for sale as suggested, with the understanding that the city would submit a bid therefor in order to comply with the provisions of the law.

"I would also recommend that plans for the opening of Garfield avenue as submitted heretofore be proceeded with immediately, excluding from the ground to be taken from the school property above referred to, also excluding from the assessment district, the entire Acacia street school grounds."

WAGE CUT NEEDED DECLARES SCHWAB

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 13.—Wages must come down, declared Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, addressing the New York Chamber of Commerce on the recent occasion of its testimonial reception to him.

If the American people are prepared to work for reasonable wages there will be foundations then, and only then, for a new prosperity, Schwab said. Railroads today, he said, are paying labor sixty cents out of every dollar received.

Germany today, Schwab added, can put a ton of steel in England at $20 a ton cheaper than England can make it. The difference is solely a matter of labor costs, according to Schwab, who said that if some sections of labor exact more than their share of the current produce of the world, other sections must suffer.

Schwab expressed himself as believing that the Germans will recover their industrial status so long as they continue the policy of making the wage balance with the costs.

RARE TREAT AT PALACE GRAND

To see Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle in almost any picture comedy is a delight, but to see him in his latest Paramount picture, "The Dollar a Year Man," which was shown to good houses at the Palace Grand theater last night, is a rare treat. When Arbuckle was seen in "Brewster's Millions," it was believed he had reached the height in five-reel comedies, but to many of his admirers, it seemed that "The Dollar a Year Man," in which he is a laundryman and amateur detective, has gone that comedy one or two better and then some.

The comedy is an excellent one and affords the big comedian ample opportunities for the display of his individual mirth-provoking talents. His battles with a band of anarchists and his rescue of a prince, are both thrilling and amusing. Dainty Lila Lee was delightful in the leading woman's role and fine support was rendered by Winifred Greenwood, J. M. Dupont, Edward Sutherland and others of an exceptionally competent cast.

MONSTER WIRELESS PLANT ERECTED

(By International News Service)

PORTLAND, Ore., May 13.—With the completion of the Federal Telegraph Company's new plant at Hillsboro, Ore., in June, the second highest-powered wireless station on the Pacific Coast will be put into operation capable of transmitting across the Pacific Ocean.

The station will be used primarily for coastal business, handling commercial messages in competition with the older wire companies.

An interesting feature of the operation of the new plant will be the direct connection of land wires with the wireless set, without a break in the circuit. Messages will be sent by wire from the company's office in Portland to the station of Hillsboro, twenty miles distant, and the instruments there will be so arranged that they will automatically transfer the signals to the wireless. Messages for delivery in Portland will be received on the roof of the building housing the company's office, thereby making the presence of a telegraph operator at the station itself unnecessary.

The station will be capable of handling eight messages simultaneously, four coming and four going, according to company officials.

The company's plant at San Diego, Cal., which was built for the navy during the war, is the largest on the Pacific Coast, being rated at 300 kilowatts.

The Hillsboro station will be of 130 kilowatts, with a tower 625 feet in height. The aerial is of umbrella type and will cover 275 acres.

AUSTRIA DESIRES TO TRADE WITH RUSSIA

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 13.—Austria is ready to resume commercial negotiations with the Bolsheviks at any time she receives permission from the Allies, according to information received here from Vienna.

Financial envoys from the Moscow government already have arranged details of the resumption of commercial intercourse. But the Austrian Government fears an early declaration might put an end to Allied plans for Austria's rehabilitation.

AND RALLY OF FORMER MISSOURIANS

Missourians in Glendale are preparing to attend a grand rally and social session tomorrow in Bixby park, Long Beach.

Excellent speakers, singers and leaders have been secured for the program, a feature of which will be the singing of the new Missouri song to be sung by the assembled multitude which is expected to number fully 2,000.

Picnic dinners will be brought and lunches may be bought on the grounds. Registers of cities, counties and colleges back in the "State of the Shining Mountain" will enable friends of olden days to find each other.

Plans will be made for the great centennial celebration to be held July 9.

Orion Is Hottest of Planets

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 13.—People with cold feet would do well to move to the constellation Orion. Charles Nordmann, famous astronomer, has just discovered that the principle star of the Orion constellation is the hottest one in space. Its temperature is about 2,800 degrees (centigrade).

Regulation All-White School Middies and Skirts for Intermediate Graduation Exercises.

This year the news has gone forth that intermediate girl graduates will wear the becoming regulation graduation dress, consisting of a separate white middy with separate white skirt. We have been fortunate in securing a complete stock of all sizes in these middies and skirts. The skirts are prettily pleated — some with under waists, others on plain bands. These skirts and middies are made of fine Twill Muslin—and in addition to serving for graduation will give serviceable wear.

U. S. TO HAVE MUSIC CENTER IN PARIS

French Deputy Says American Officers and Soldiers Are Guilty of Thefts

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 13.—An American conservatory of music, long a dream of leading American musicians, is now an accomplished fact. The realization is given a keener edge by virtue of the fact that the conservatory is not to be in the United States, thus giving American talent is long desired opportunity to study abroad.

The palace of Fontainbleau, in the village of that name, in France, has been offered to the American committee of the recently founded summer school of music by the French government, through the good offices of M. Leon Barard, minister of public instruction and fine arts, to be used for three months each summer as a conservatory of music for talented students of music in America.

The entire staff of the Paris Conservatoire of Music, headed by M. Camille Saint-Saens, director of Beaux-Arts, will undertake the work of instruction to American students. M. Henri Rabaud, director of the Paris Conservatoire, has also promised to devote his energies to perfecting the new school of music.

The method of selection of the 250 American students to be sent abroad will be on a pro rata basis of the states. The requisites for admission to the summer school of music at Fontainbleau are letters from authoritative instructors or recognized schools of music; letters from recognized persons in the United States as to the applicant's moral qualifications and proof of actual musical talent, however latent.

The students sent to Fontainbleau will live in the historic palace. Women will be quartered in the Marie Antoinette wing and men in the Louis Quatorze wing.

The president of the Fontainbleau school of music, under the auspices of the French government, ministry of Beaux-Arts, and the American Friends of Musicians in France, is Mrs. George Montgomery Tuttle, of New York. The vice-president is Walter Damrosch; treasurer, Mr. William Sparling; secretary, Miss Esther Singleton.

The Fontainbleau school of music is modelled upon the famous Paris Conservatoire and the staff of teachers is drawn from the conservatoire. The courses will have exactly the same value as those of the conservatoire itself. The students will have the inestimable advantage of studying under the guidance of such men as Charles Marie Wider, Francis Casadesus, Paul Vidal, A. Philipp, Lucien Capet, Andre Hekking, Henry Casadesus, Camille, Decreus, Hettich, Grandjany, Maurice Len, Jacques Pillois, Regina Patorni, Nadia Boulanger, Maurice Hewitt and others.

Instruction will be given in piano, violin, violoncello, organ, harp, singing, conducting, harmony, musical composition, counterpoint and fugue, ancient musical instruments and ensemble-playing.

The course in old instruments, such as the viola d'amore, viola de gamba, harpsichord, etc., is a particularly attractive in view of the new vogue these long-forgotten instruments are now beginning to have.

Special lectures on musical culture, acoustics, physiology of the voice and instruments of every description will be given.

Historical concerts in the palace will also be a feature of the season.

Diplomas similar to those of the Paris Conservatoire will be conferred at the end of the season and a prize called the "Prix de Paris" awarded for composition.

The winner of the Prix de Paris will be entitled to a whole year's tuition in Paris with all expenses paid. Many other prizes will also be awarded.

Those who are fortunate enough to be sent to France to represent America from July 1 to October 1 will be carried to and from France by the ships of the Compagnie Generale Translantique at the same rates as members of the diplomatic corps, at a considerable saving of cost.

Students will sail on the Paris on her maiden voyage from America, leaving New York on June 23.

Less than $500 will be sufficient for each student for expenses for board, lodging and tuition for three months at Fontainbleau.

The committee which has the selection and management of the students in America, is housed in the New York public library, 121 East Fifty-eighth street, and all who desire to take the course should make immediate application to the secretary, Miss Esther Singleton.

SCHOOL CHILDREN ACT AS GUIDES

BOULDER, Col., May 13—Thousands of tourists who will visit the canons and other scenic wonders in the vicinity of Boulder this season will be materially aided in their quest for attractive scenery by the school children of this city.

Twenty-five hundred school children devoted the first week in May to a study of Boulder and its natural resources in order that they may have correct information to pass along to tourists during the 1921 season.

The children attended an exhibition of pictures of Boulder County scenery and a display of its various civic, educational and industrial developments. They also wrote themes on various phases of community progress.

Lectures were delivered by several college professors, describing surrounding glaciers, scenery gems and the "national forest" of Colorado.

The Road to Heaven

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 13.—"I want to get right with the Lord," William Fry, of Phoenix, Arizona, wrote the State Treasury in remitting $6 for an automobile license which he says he should have paid for several years ago. "Take this conscience money and help build good roads."

The money was placed in the good roads fund.

WOMAN'S COZY CORNER

By JOSEPHINE FRANCE

There is a mistaken idea commonly held regarding cheese; by many it is thought to be a most indigestible food. On the contrary, cheese, when properly prepared and served with the right kinds of food, becomes one of our valuable dishes.

Cheese Omelet

One teaspoon cornstarch, ½ cup of milk, 3 eggs, ½ cup grated cheese, seasoning.

Cook the corn-starch in the milk. Beat the eggs and stir slowly into the milk. Stir in the cheese and seasoning. Melt one tablespoonful of butter in an omelet pan, add the omelet. Serve very hot.

Cheese Cakes

Two eggs, ½ cup butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 pound cheese, 2½ cups flour, dash cayenne pepper.

Chop or grate the cheese; mix the butter, flour and cheese well together. Beat the eggs thoroughly and add with seasoning. Roll out lightly on floured board till about as thick as pie crust, cut with cooky cutter (or in any shape desired), and bake in a very hot oven until golden brown. These are delicious with salad.

German Cheese Cake

For this make a rich biscuit dough with one quart of flour, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one egg, three tablespoons of butter, one pint of sweet milk and one teaspoon of vanila. Roll this dough out one-quarter inch thick and line a pie tin as for custard pie. For the filling, use:

One pint pot-cheese, ½ teaspoon of vanila, 1 egg, 1 cup sweet milk, sugar, salt and cinnamon to taste, 1 tablespoon flour.

Mash the cheese free from all lumps. Then mix in the flour, dry. Beat the egg, add sugar, salt, cinnamon and milk, and add to the cheese. Beat thoroughly. This mixture should be a little stiffer than thick cream. Pour into the dough, sprinkle the top with dried currants and bake in a hot, quick oven. Serve cold.

Cheese Savoy

Prepare some thin slices of toast. Cover each slice with one-half inch pieces of Swiss cheese. Lay all in a baking pan and season lightly with pepper. Break an egg carefully in the center of each slice and place at once in a hot oven. Bake until eggs are set and cheese is well melted.

Cheese Vermicelli

One-half pound of cheese, 1 tablespoon corn-starch, 1 tablespoon of butter, 2 cups sweet milk.

Place one-half pounds of cheese in a saucepan, add a tablespoon of butter and place over the fire. Stir constantly, and add a little at a time, two cups of milk that have been thickened with one tablespoon of corn-starch. Cook until smooth and creamy. Arrange slices of thick toast on a platter, pour the cheese mixture over it and serve at once. This makes a good dish to serve at night in place of the old-time Welsh Rarebit.

Tomatoes and Cheese

One cup of tomato juice, 1 cup of bread crumbs, salt, 1 pound of grated cheese, 1 tablespoon of flour, cayenne pepper.

Have ready some slices of hot toast. Strain some tomatoes until have one cup of juice. Grate one pound of cheese and add to the tomato with salt to taste, a dash of cayenne, and one cup of bread crumbs. Melt a tablespoon of butter in an omelet pan, add the tomato mixture and stir rapidly until well cooked and creamy. Pour over the hot toast and serve at once. This makes a very substantial dish and can be served in place of meat for dinner. Children are very fond of it prepared like this and like to see it on the luncheon table.

HOLD ENTHUSIASTIC PRAYER MEETING

Wednesday evening, a large, enthusiastic group of members and friends met for the weekly prayer meeting of the Tropico Presbyterian church. Rev. Rider spoke on "Cooperation." The thought uppermost was that each one must find his work and be interested in serving the community. Many inspirational testimonies of the value of the Brown meetings were given. It was announced that Paul Brown, state field secretary of the Christian Endeavor, would speak at the young people's meeting, Sunday evening at 6:30. Preceding Christian Endeavor there would be a social hour.

Ah, dear spender, come back again. We didn't mean that harsh talk about thrift.

AVIATION SITE IS HELD UP BY TITLE

(By International News Service)

BOSTON, May 13.—Condemnation proceedings to acquire land for a naval aviation station, to be known as Chatham Aviation Field, have begun in the Federal Court with the filing of a petition by the Government for the securing of property owned by about 40 persons in Barnstable county.

An appropriation of $75,000 was made by Congress for the purchase of the land under the Urgent Deficiency Act, but the owners, it is stated, failed to give the Government a clear title as promised. The Government contends it has been unable to purchase the land free from incumbrance and asks that a jury in the federal court to fix a purchase price on the various parcels in question.

THOUSAND CIVIL WAR VETS MEET

Fifty-fourth Annual G. A. R. Convention Attended by Robert Taylor

Comrade Robert Taylor of W. P. Banks Post returned this morning from Stockton, where he has been attending the 54th annual Grand Army convention of the department of California and Nevada.

Stockton streets and business houses, Comrade Taylor reports, were gaily decorated with flags and signs of welcome, and a fund of several thousands of dollars had been subscribed to provide entertainment for the guests.

Ideal weather greeted the visitors and the parade was a grand success.

The Southland was signally honored at the encampment. William H. Holl of Stanton Post, Los Angeles, was elected department commander and Riverside was chosen as the convention city for next year's encampment.

Past National Commander Burton of Missouri, was an honored guest of the convention.

One thousand civil war veterans or more from all parts of California and Nevada were in attendance. Five other conventions of auxiliaries of the G. A. R. held their sessions in Stockton at the same time.

Others from Glendale who were in attendance and who are expected home today or Saturday are Comrades Clark and Rouse and Mrs. Dutton Hapgood and Peck.

AMERICAN TOURISTS ARE EASY MARKS

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 13.—American tourists furnish fine "picking" for the greedy Egyptian hotel keeper. He makes extortion the rule of business.

Tourists lured to "American plan" hotels in Alexandria and other cities of Egypt pay from $5 to $12 a day, and then find countless extra charges imposed for varieties of "service," said American Consul Maynard. Egyptians consider Americans "easy victims" and squeeze their bankrolls in conscienceless fashion, Maynard declares.

NINE TO FIVE ODDS ON JACK DEMPSEY

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 13.—Jack Dempsey was a nine to five favorite over Georges Carpentier in odds in the coming battle at Jersey City, July 2, quoted in Wall Street today. Carpentier money is scared as yet, but some few wagers of size have been placed. Mordaunt & Company, bankers, announced a bet of $2500 against $4500 that Carpentier will last 12 rounds.

Tagging All the Bases

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 13.—Babe Ruth is running away ahead of his 1920 home run pace today.

One year ago today the Sultan of Swat had five circuit smashes to his credit, registering his fifth off Lefty Williams at the Polo grounds, May 12.

Thursday at Detroit, Ruth tricked George Dauss for his tenth homer of the present season and he needs but two more to equal his last year's record up to May 31 when he had a total of 12.

In order to equal his 1920 pace Ruth must make 14 more homers between now and July 9. He has nearly two months in which to accomplish this feat. That he will give his 1920 mark the hottest kind of bombardment seems certain and at the rate he is going now he will send it crashing into the discard.

Interest in Ruth's home run campaign has been increased by the advent of George Kelly of the Giants as a candidate for honors. While Ruth was marking up his tenth four-ply knock at Detroit, Kelly registered his eighth at the Polo grounds against St. Louis. And there were three men on the bases.

Ruth leads the Giant slugger in home runs by two, but his work with the stick has not been as fruitful in the way of pounding runs home. The Babe's homers alone have resulted in the scoring of 15 runs for the Yanks, for on five occasions there was a runner on base.

Kelly's efforts along the same line have knocked home 19 runs for the Giants. Twice he has slammed the ball out of bounds with the bases full; once there were two men on, and he has carried one runner home with him on three occasions.

In order to keep pace with Ruth, Kelly will have to whip up, but he should worry. At his present speed he will easily establish a new home run record in the National League.

"HALF A CHANCE" AT GLENDALE THEATER

Think of the greatest outdoor picture you have ever seen; recall the novels of Jack London and Rex Beach; the poetry of Robert Service—"Half a Chance," showing at the Glendale theater today and tomorrow, belongs in their class. It takes its place in the rank and file of gripping, virile and forceful screen dramas.

"Half a Chance" is the most popular novel by the celebrated author and playwright, Frederick S. Isham. It could not fail to enjoy popularity for it is the sort of story that appeals to the masses—the story of a man who, sunken to the depths, batters his way through almost insurmountable obstacles with the sheer force of physical dominance, determination and will power.

"She Sighed by the Seaside," featuring Ben Turpin in the latest Mack Sennett comedy, is another treat of this great bill at the Glendale theater today.

MEXICO TO STUDY U. S. WATER PROJECT

(By International News Service)

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Former Governor Manuel Ballazare, of the Northern District of Lower California, will be appointed head of the Mexican engineers to be named members of a joint commission with the United States to study the Colorado River situation. This commission is to make recommendations for the permanent control of the flood waters of the Colorado, it is said.

All in the Day's Work

(By International News Service)

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 13.—Lawrence Harriman, eight years old, of Ashland, N. H., isn't letting a little matter of falling even an eighteen foot dam and struggling ashore through the icy water before the falls interfere very much with school or play. The boy was fishing from the top of the dam, and catching his foot on a plank, plunged over the dam. He reached the shore unaided, was pulled out by a man who was passing and aside from a slight cut on one knee, was uninjured.

"40 HOMMES—8 CHEVAUX"

The hardships of the long ago are often enshrouded in the present by warm memories and not infrequently becomes rare treasures handed down to posterity. It has only been a dozen or so years since every county carnival was considered a failure if a wild west or Indian stage coach holdup was not reenacted. A half dozen bony nags from the village livery stable were hitched to a dilapidated coach and driven recklessly over a wheat field nearby while pseudo Indians arrayed in gaudy and newly purchased flannel shirts circled on horse-back about the vehicle and staged a fake holdup amid the staccato of blank cartridges. Thus were the tribulations of early frontier life re-enacted for the amusement of the younger generation.

It is a traditional fact that no gray-haired man has since youth tasted water as good as that which he obtained from a frozen pump on a wintry morning on the farm. No apples eaten in later years have ever been quite so luscious as those which grew on the tree back of the barn. The poet is right, if he refers to time, when he sings of enchantment supplied by memory.

It is not a surprising thing at all that the members of the 88th division have planned to recall those fateful days in France by re-enacting their modes of transportation at the division's reunion next September at Des Moines. All the unkind things that were said about those dinky little French box cars labelled, "40 Hommes—8 Chevaux," are forgotten and their rides in them become brightened by memory. It is planned for all veterans coming to the reunion to make the trip across the state of Nebraska in box cars bearing the French inscription.

Without doubt, thousands of small boys will watch these curiously labelled cars and their human cargoes of youthful veterans with wonder and amazement. The stunt may be repeated elsewhere and continue for years. At least, it is hoped so, for young humanity needs something to take the place of the old, fake stage-coach holdups which have now passed into history

WHAT YOUR ABILITY IS WORTH

As long as you are not too old to learn you are young.

As soon as you reach the point where you are unwilling to change in your way of doing things, you are due for a change of employers, for your work will become valueless where you are.

It may be hard for you—a man of middle age—to accept instructions from a younger man relative to what your superior desires you to do—more modern changes which he proposes—but if you do not adopt them someone will be hired in your place to carry out his ideas more fully.

Suppose you do feel confident that your way is better—and you may be right—as long as it is up to someone else to run the business and you are there to take orders, are paid to take orders, you must adopt the policies of the man at the helm.

During the war middle-aged men were given another chance to make good after they had thought they had gone past the prime of life, and because firms had to hire men unfitted for war duty and the wages were high it has led some men to think their services are worth more than they really are.

Weigh your ability in unbiased scales and don't make the mistake of thinking your services could not be replenished with ease.

REDUCING ROBBERIES

The American bankers' association, in convention at Pinehurst, N. C., has decided to take special steps toward eliminating holdups and robberies. The United States postoffice department arrived at this conclusion some time ago. Ordinary safeguards have proved inadequate and punishment by law has lost its effectiveness. The strain upon human emotions during the war, especially in arousing a sense of futility of life, has turned hundreds of men and boys who were unscrupulous at heart into actual criminals. Consequences, therefore, are lightly considered and the one remaining safeguard against outlawry is physical protection. Money and other valuables must be so well guarded that it is impossible, even at the cost of murder, for bandits to make away with stolen property. To send a wagon filled with valuable mail down the street with only one or even two men guarding it, or to leave a single watchman as guardian over money or jewels is simply to invite murder and robbery.

MILITARY CAREER IS PRINCE'S GOAL

(By International News Service)

LONDON, May 13.—Prince Henry, third son of the King and Queen, is preparing himself for a military career. He was gazetted a second lieutenant in the King's Royal Rifles late last year and recently was transferred to the Thirteenth Hussars at Aldershot.

Prince Henry has not been as much in the public eye as his older brothers, the Duke of York and the Prince of Wales. Prince Henry was twenty-one on March 31 last. The third son of the royal house is much taller and heavier than his elder brothers, and his propensities lean toward athletics. He has always been fond of outdoor sports. He is a graduate of the army class at Eton. The Prince only recently was graduated from Sandhurst, after a rigorous course of study in military science. Sandhurst corresponds to the American West Point.

COLORADO HAS STAR COLLEGE ATHLETE

(By International News Service)

BOULDER, Colo., May 13.—Displaying marked ability in every branch of sports, Chester Schrepfernan, University of Colorado senior, will be the first student in the history of that institution to win five "letters" in a single year for participation in intercollegiate athletics.

Schrepfernan has already been awarded his "C. U." in football and basketball. His brilliant showing in baseball, track and golf assures him letters in these sports. Golf has only recently been added to the list of sports that entitle athletes to a "letter."

Schrepfernan comes from Denver, where he was prominent in scholastic athletic contests. He is the mainstay on the mound for the university ball team this Spring.

Army System to Prevail

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 13.—Harvard's athletic managers hereafter will be elected on a system similar to that employed in ranking officers in the Army F. W. Moore, graduate manager of the H. A. A., is sponsor of the new system with which personality, executive ability, industry, reliability efficiency and scholarship will count towards selection.

GRAVE AND GAY

ABSOLUTELY

"Hereafter there will be absolutely no smoking in the barracks at any time," bellowed a captain in Raritan arsenal, New Jersey, after a fire caused by a forgotten butt had been quelled. "Absolutely! Not at any time!"

Then he paused and added as an afterthought in a louder bellow even than before:

"Especially at night!"—American Legion Weekly.

SPOILING THE SHOW.

"I understand the magician's performance was broken up in disorder."

"Yes. While he was levitating Princess Oompah, a careless stage hand left a door open and exposed her to a strong draft."

"Well?"

"She began to swing, and a ribald patron in the gallery shouted: "Rock-a-by, Baby!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

SHE CAUGHT HIM.

"Pop!"

"Yes my son."

"Are you busy just now?"

"No, my boy. Why?"

"Got time to answer me a question?

"Oh, I think so."

"Well, pop, how are lobsters caught?"

"Oh, go ask your mother."

AN IMPOSSIBLE UNDERTAKING.

"I hear that you have been laid up with nervous prostration. What's the cause, overwork or worry?"

"Both. I tried to have a photograph taken that suited my wife."

BEST WAY OUT.

When Bracer hints that he is short.
And starts the same old song,
Don't wait to hear how short he is.
But just remark, "So long."

RELATIVE RANK.

"And do you think I would prove a satisfactory mate with whom to sail the sea of life?" he asked softly.

"Oh, so-so," the maiden responded coolly. "You'd do pretty well as a mate, I guess, if you clearly understood who was captain."—Country Gentleman.

LIGHT HEADED.

The lights were very low, and stillness reigned in the back parlor. Presently a female voice was heard:

"Freddie, dear!"

"Yes, angel."

"Does my head seem heavy on your shoulder?"

"No, darling. It is very light, indeed!"

AN INGENIOUS THING.

Mrs. Mason, who had just had installed an electric cooking stove, asked her maid, Norah, what she thought of it.

"To me, mum," said Norah, "it seems like a great invention. When you and Mr. Mason were away for over Sunday, mum, I burned it all the time, mum, and there seems to be plinty of electricity still left!"

THIS IS MEAN.

"Why don't married men kiss their wives oftener?"

"I dunno. I have noticed, however, that the mouse in the trap seems to lose all taste for cheese."

INEVITABLE LEISURE.

"Nobody ought to enjoy the bread of idleness."

"And yet you can't expect a man who sells bread these days to avoid getting rich enough to quit work."

A TOUCH OF AUTHORITY

"You claim to be an optimist?"

"I do," replied the photographer. "When I tell a man to smile, he invariably does his best."

A CYNICAL WOMAN

Mrs. Green—My husband seems to enjoy life thoroughly.

Mrs. Wyse—What a lot of bad habits he must have.—Boston Transcript.

THE GRAND ESSENTIAL

"What is the plot of your new play?"

"We haven't begun to think about that," replied the producing manager.

"But you say you have a sure winner."

"We certainly have. We thought up a risque title that'll bring the people in as soon as they read the billboards."

CITIZENSHIP WON BY SIOUX INDIAN

(By International News Service)

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 13.—Lo, the red man has at last been given the full rights of citizenship by his pale-faced Uncle Sam.

Thomas Blackbird, twenty-three years old, is the first full-blooded Indian ever admitted to citizenship in the United States. He was given complete naturalization by Judge John Riner, in the Federal district court here.

Blackbird is a full-blooded Sioux Indian, and a veteran of the World War. He was admitted under a special Act of Congress, passed November 5, 1919, the provisions of which permit any Indian of legal age who has served in the World War to become a citizen without first making any formal declaration. Henceforth the Indian may vote, hold office or exercise any other privilege enjoyed by the electorate.

Loyal service to the Government during the hostilities with the Central Powers removed the ban against Indians becoming citizens, despite the fact that they were born in this country, and Blackbird is the first real "native" to take advantage of the privilege bestowed upon the red man.

Blackbird served nearly two years in France, being in several of the American Army's major operations. He is now in the regular army stationed at Fort D. A. Russell, near here.

AMERICANS MAY REBUILD LOUVAIN

(By International News Service)

LONDON, May 13.—The plans submitted by Mr. Whitney Warren, the famous American architect, for the rebuilding of the library of Louvain, have been approved by the Belgian authorities.

As the Latin inscription which it is proposed should be carved in stone over the main entrance phrases it, the library "was destroyed by the barbarians," and it is to be rebuilt by "gifts of Americans."

Mr. Warren is going to America shortly to help in raising the million dollars necessary for the work.

He hopes that the first stone will be laid by July. The designs are based upon Flemish 17th century architecture.

INVENTS NOISELESS CLOCK WITH FAN

(By International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 13.—William Tigerman, this city, has invented a noiseless clock that will with a one-minute winding, run one year and keep accurate time.

The clock is ball-bearing, requires no oiling and records months of the year as well as minutes and hours of the day. It has no pendulum, no weights and is operated by a spring of highly tempered steel.

Tigerman is also the inventor of a rotary fan that operates by power of a spring. This fan can be wound in one and one-half minutes and will run six hours. It throws a current of air stronger that that of the average electric fan. In one respect the fan is similar to the clock, it is ball-bearing and requires no oiling.

Far Western Meat Eaters

SIBERT, Col., May 13.—Prairie dog meat was served as the piece de resistance at a banquet here and pronounced by the guests to be equally as palatable as fried chicken.

It is believed to be the first time that the prairie bow-wows have graced the festive board in this section.

ARE YOU GOING?

"Are you going? Of course, I wouldn't miss it for anything." That is what they all say when they come to our class meetings. Come Sunday morning at 9:30 to the Central Christian Church and get acquainted with us. ALPHA OMEGA CLASS.

GIRLS' RALLY

Another tea for Glendale girls will be held at the Baptist Church at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, May 14. No girl who attended any of the teas during the Brown meetings will want to miss this rally. All girls—business girls, high school girls and "just girls" are invited to come and to "bring the other girl." Each girl is asked to bring her own luncheon. There will be music, a social time and interesting speeches. The meeting will close early so that anyone desiring to attend the Chautauqua may do so.

FOOD SALE

A food sale is to be given at Shaver's Grocery store, 634 East Broadway, by the members of the First M. E. choir, Saturday, beginning at 9:30.

OWN YOUR HOME

It is the worthy ambition of every man to own a home. Ownership means contentment, security and happiness. It is worth working for.

It is a fact that the City of Glendale is known as "A City of Homes." A large per cent of its population own their own homes.

You can buy a home with a comparatively small payment down and pay the balance like rent. In a few years you will have paid for the property and will have title to it instead of a bundle of rent receipts.

LOOTING CHARGED TO U. S. SOLDIERS

By NEWTON C. PARKE
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PARIS, May 13.—American officers and soldiers were guilty of wholesale looting in American supply camps, after they had been sold to the French government following the armistice, Deputy Charles Vavasseur charged in a lengthy speech in the chamber of deputies on the "American stocks scandal."

Vavasseur alleged that 37,945 of the 72,156 automobiles sold to France by the United States government mysteriously disappeared before they were turned over and that of 20,970 motorcycles France purchased, only 2987 were found when the American troops had gone away. One American officer, he asserted, shipped home 1500 motor cars and tons of other merchandise and other soldiers carried away truckloads of goods over the protests of French supervisors.

Vavasseur demanded that the French government make immediate representations to Washington and ask for a reduction of the purchase price, $400,000,000.

"I do not want to call in question the good faith of the Washington government or the honesty of the American people," he said, when several deputies protested against his accusations against American soldiers, "but I do want to point out that the misdeeds of a few individuals and call attention at the same time to the laxity of French officials.

Agreement Broken

"When the French government entered into conversations with the United States for the purchase of American supplies left in France, Judge Parker, representing the American government, agreed in writing that from April 9, 1919, on, the United States would dispose of no more of the supplies without the consent of the French government. Despite that agreement the Americans never ceased selling in wholesale and in retail lots.

The French government accepted the American inventory as scrupulously exact and without confirming it. The contract was signed August 1, 1919. In the months intervening the Americans continued to dispose of the supplies.

"In this contract the Americans reserved the right to remove material they had sold before August 1, as well as material for the sale of which negotiations were in progress when the contract was signed. They also reserved the right to use any material they needed during the remainder of their stay in France and to take any goods needed by the troops in departing for America.

"But when the first French agents arrived about the 7th of August they were unable to take inventories. Certain subordinate American officers refused to permit them to examine the stocks and compelled them, if they desired to remain in the camps, to live in certain barracks and to obtain special permits before going out.

Disorder Basis of Trouble

"Furthermore, they found the greatest disorder, goods of all kinds and in such enormous quantities that one might have thought the Americans came to France to start a gigantic commercial enterprise. So great was the disorder that when the French government finally took charge and began to sell, buyers who thought they were purchasing typewriters often received boxes labelled 'typewriters,' but actually containing bars of chocolate.

"At the camp of Saint Sulpice, a regular robbery was carried on. Every day merchandise in enormous quantities passed out and when one of the French representatives objected the American officers pointed to the reserves made by the American government in the contract." At the Gievres camp things were in such a mess that it took more than a year for us to complete an inventory."

At this juncture another deputy interjected:

"It was a sort of Ali Baba's cave, wasn't it?"

"No," replied M. Vavasseur. "There were only 40 thieves in Ali Baba's cave."

Calf Without Tail

HAZELTINE, Col., May 13.—Mrs. Hattie Crawford, living on a ranch near here, is, oh, so lachrymose because she feels a tailless calf born on the Crawford ranch will be in agony during the Summer without the necessary appendage to 'swat the fly."

The calf is a male Holstein and declared to be normal, except for the lack of a tail.

"The hide goes smoothly over the place where the tail should be," Mrs. Crawford reported. "There isn't the sign of a tail—it doesn't even commence."

"And I suppose," she lamented, "that we will have to hire someone to keep the flies off the poor calf."

WEST VIRGINIA NOW EMBROILED IN CIVIL WAR

Most Extensive Industrial Battle in the History of Mingo County

OFFICIALS POWERLESS

Large Number of Shots Were Fired in the Battle Which Raged Yesterday

(By International News Service)

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., May 13.—Local officials are taking stock this morning of what appears to be the most extensive industrial battle in the history of Mingo county and which is still raging along a part of the seven-mile front that was active throughout yesterday.

"This section of West Virginia is embroiled in civil war through the efforts of coal miners to unionize the coal industry and the opposition of operators to that course," was the declaration of Sheriff W. R. Pinson this morning.

Messages admitting the powerlessness of local officials to cope with the situation have been sent to Governor Morgan of West Virginia at Charleston and to Governor Morrow of Kentucky at Frankfort.

Estimates made by officials this morning indicated that approximately 100,000 shots were fired in the battle yesterday. Fifty or more men, presumably miners, participated in the fighting at Merrimac, which was defended by 17 officers of the state police. It is believed that the attacking party at Sprigg numbered several hundred, and thousands of shots were fired there.

Officials declared today that more than 6000 shots were fired in the first hour of fighting at Blackberry City and Allburn.

Firing is still being kept up at Allburn and at Merrimac, according to reports reaching Sheriff Hinson early this morning, but at Pawl and Sprigg, where heavy damage took place yesterday, latest reports indicate comparative quiet.

Calvin McCoy, one of the 28 defendants tried for the murder of Albert Felts, who was killed in the Mattewan gun battle last June, is under arrest here, as is Dave Phillips, a constable. Both are charged with having fired shots which killed Harry Staten at Sprigg yesterday morning. Noah Phillips and James Calven are under arrest and charges of participating in the fight at Merrimac have been made against them.

Hundreds of Poles Emigrate to America

Passport Chiefs Find Many Fraudulent Vises and Consular Stamps, Which Are Causing All Kinds of Trouble to Officials and Inconveniencing Emigrants

(By International News Service)

WARSAW, May 13.—One of the new "daily sights" of Warsaw is a line of 1500 Polish and Jewish fugitives from all parts of Poland seeking permission to go to new homes in peaceful America. The line stretches away from the American consulate, housed in a huge market building which has a great glass roof and resembles a New York steamship pier shed.

Every one in the line must be armed with four things: a Polish passport, $10 in American currency for the vise a certified letter from relatives in the United States and a third-class steamship ticket. Only about 500 can get vises in one day.

The majority of the applicants are Jewish women and children, dependents of persons now living in the United States. Many of their men folks went to America before the war, intending soon after their arrival to send for their sisters, wives and children, but the war cut them off. In one day recently there were 300 women applicants from the town of Cholm. Most of their husbands had gone to New York before the war and Hester street was a common address.

The Warsaw line forms early in the morning, long before the light is up, and most of the people in it are prepared to stand there all day. Food is hawked to them in the course of the day on trays much like ice cream cones or refreshments at American baseball games. Mattresses on which women and children sleep are also common sights.

Weed Out Frauds

Attempts to sell fraudulent vises to the unsuspecting in the line are frequent and are giving the authorities a great deal of worry. Coming from the devastated lands of Poland, the ignorant refugees fall easy victims to the false tales of easing their way to an American vise and the steamship for the promised land. The practice has become so widespread that it has resulted in numerous arrests and cancellations of passports.

In an effort to discourage the practise, American Vice Consul Huddle stepped out of his office in the top tier of the market building the other day and delivered a speech to the emigrants in which he warned them against those who were preying on their ignorance.

"Thirty-four emigrants," he said, "have been imprisoned in New York, where they were trying to get into the United States with false American vises. Thirty people are being sent back from Gotehorg, Swedan, where they were stopped by the American authorities. They cannot go to America because they had false vises.

"Many other emigrants have been arrested in Danzig, Rotterdam and Amsterdam because they were trying to get on ships for America with false passports and false vises. All of these people will be prohibited from going to the United States.

Some Cold Advice

"Hundreds of swindlers are in Warsaw trying to steal your money. They say you can get the America vise for you. They are liars and cheats. They will only make trouble for you and you can never go to the United States if you deal with them.

"Tell all your friends to beware of passport cheats and vise swindlers. Tell them the American officials know all about their game and that everyone who possesses these false documents will be caught and will not get to that land of their heart's desire."

The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society for America is cooperating with the American authorities in their efforts to run down the false passports and vises, and their agents are working both in Warsaw and Danzig, where most of the emigrants embark for the United States.

Danzig is crowded with fugitives who have passed through the routine of procuring vises at Warsaw and are waiting for their ships. There are several camps full of them and the authorities are taking precautions to prevent outbreaks of epidemic diseases.

Ex-King Manuel Is A "Penny Gambler"

(By International News Service)

NICE, May 13.—Ex-King Manuel of Portugal, whose escapades with the late Gaby Deslys won him the title, "the world's gayest monarch," is leading as quiet and simple a life as a man can lead on the French Riviera. A plain St. Louis business man, out for a lark at Nice, Cannes and Monte Carlo, makes the former Portuguese ruler look as dead as an Egyptian mummy.

Mrs. Manuel is with the ex-king almost everywhere he goes. In the morning they are frequently seen strolling along the Rue d'Antibes, in Cannes, "window shopping" and occasionally making a few small purchases. Manuel, always accompanied by the former queen, always spends his afternoons at bridge, at the races or playing tennis. He is a "bridge fiend" and on rainy days is at the bridge table all afternoon, at the Cercle Nautique. There he finds, among the best known players, the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess Cyril, Countess Torby, Prince Radziwill, the Duchess of Albany, the Princess of Athlone, Princess Marie of Ligne, the Baron de Rothschild, and the Prince and Princess Philip of Bourbon.

The former king plays a good game at tennis. In the last big tournament he succeeded in reaching the semi-finals before he was eliminated by a younger player.

Excepting for his wife, Maunel is seldom seen alone in the company of any woman but Lady Coats, who is a well-known figure at Cannes and an intimate of the former Queen of Portugal. He frequently escorts Lady Coats to tea and sometimes to the casino at night, when his wife is a bit tired.

Manuel is an almost nightly figure at the casino. He has engaged for the entire season, the first loge, but seldom occupies it, preferring the baccarat room. There he gambles every night, but in sums so small that the Monte Carlo habitues would instantly pronounce him a "piker." But the ex-king, so the casino attendants say, generally comes away slightly ahead of the game.

Since their arrival at Cannes the ex-king and queen have occupied a luxurious apartment in the resort's highest-priced hotel.

Trustees Give $300 to Christian Endeavor

issued to muzzle dogs was unanimously adopted. The report of the city forester on the Long Beach conference was also received.

Assemblyman John Robert White appeared before the board and formally presented a report on the ratification of the Glendale city charter by the California legislature, May 11.

A recommendation with regard to the widening of Brand boulevard at San Fernando road was submitted by City Manager Watson and adopted by the board. His recommendation that the city purchase land from the city school trustees, needed in the opening of Garfield avenue, was also approved. His recommendation that next year's budget include an appropriation of $400 to be applied on the expense of straightening the Verdugo wash channel north of Opechee way, to which the flood control district and the Newport company have agreed to contribute, $2100, was referred to the committee of the whole.

On the recommendation of City Attorney Shaw, the agreement between the city and the Packer Auto company for the purchase of a Moreland truck, was approved, and the president and city clerk instructed to execute the same.

The board reconsidered its decision not to hear protests on lot cleaning and set May 19, at 8 p. m., as the time for such hearings.

Ordinances were introduced for the widening of Brand, for the opening of Garfield avenue, for franchise to the Glendale-Montrose railroad and a zoning ordinance.

The city clerk was ordered to advertise for bids on $100,000 water bond issue and the $50,000 issue for municipal district No. 3.

On the report of City Attorney Shaw, relative to testimony in connection with the death of Miss Eugenia Lindsey resulting from the accident at Los Feliz road and Brand boulevard on May 2, he was instructed to file a complaint against the Pacific Electric railway in behalf of the city, for violation of ordinance No. 400.

"GLEN AND DALE"

Glen and Dale will welcome 20 or 25 young people Saturday of this week. They are the state officers of the Christian Endeavor and are coming to look over the convention city, make plans for the program for June 25 to 29, and complete reports of their year's work. We know they will take enthusiastic reports back to their respective county and district organization. These members of the state executive committee will be entertained in the homes of the local convention committee, who are very glad to have these promoters of young people's work here.

CENTRAL AVENUE P.-T. A. MEETING

The Central avenue Parent-Teacher association held its regular meeting Thursday afternoon following a May day fete program, and elected officers for the coming year as follows:

Mrs. Crawford, president; Mrs. Dodds, first vice-president; Mrs. Frost, second vice-president; Mrs. Farwell, secretary; Mrs. Hurbeke, treasurer; Mrs. Harris, parliamentarian; Mrs. C. M. Taylor, historian. Following the business session ice cream and cake were served.

Easy Road to North Pole Shown by Stefansson Talk

cannot get a great distance from the ocean which is about two miles deep. The water has a temperature of about 31 degrees Fahrenheit and a great deal of steam rises from it. New York often has zero temperatures, Boston 10 below, Minneapolis 20 to 30 below. There are winter resorts at Saranac, N. Y., where the mercury goes 40 to 45 below. On the north coast of Alaska the government has had an observatory for 40 years and reports show that it has never been colder than 54 below zero, while at Havre, Mont., the records show 68 below or ten degrees colder than the average at the north pole."

Arctic Vegetation

The prairies of northern Alaska, he said, are covered with grass and have so light a snow fall that it does not interfere with the feeding of caribou and reindeer on the dried grass beneath. The snowfall, he declared, is about one-fourth that of St. Louis, and these grassy plains in northern Alaska and the islands north of Alaska, also in northern Canada, are capable of sustaining great herds of reindeer which will solve the problem of the meat supply of the world. He told of addressing a joint session of the Canadian houses of parliament in regard to appropriations for stocking these ranges, which represent about 6,000,000 acres. He made it very clear that while the winters are cold, the summers are warm and that at a point 211 miles north of the great Arctic circle the temperature averaged 90 degrees in the shade for six weeks. One day it went to 103 degrees and it was not dry heat either. Furthermore, the sun not only beats down on you at noon, it continues to beat down on you at midnight and there is no rest from it, but in order to have such a temperature that far north of the Arctic circle you must be a long way from the ocean.

Mosses and Lichens in Minority

Another mistaken notion mentioned was the general belief that moss and lichens are the chief vegetation whereas on the low lands grass grows luxuriantly, blue grass being the prevailing cover of Elsmere island. To every ton of moss and lichens, said he, are ten tons of grass. He also said he had brought from the island mentioned 756 specimens of flowers, many of them common here, and the list was just 50 more than the list of flowering plants in Texas.

Greenland, for the most part, is a mountain of ice as the hymn describes it, but the northern end of this island which is low is not covered with ice and in summer is a green meadow.

For many of the misconceptions about the terrible cold and the hardships of life there Mr. Stefansson blames some of the explorers who have found it a pleasant and profitable thing to be "heroes" for which the demand is always in excess of the supply." The missionaries are to blame too, he says, because it is easier to get money for their work if they do not minimize their discomforts.

Marine Food Abundant

The most thrilling part of his talk was reached when he told of becoming personally convinced that the ocean waters all through the north are teeming with marine life and it would be possible for explorers to travel light as tramps and maintain themselves. He persuaded the American Geographical Society to finance an expedition to test the idea, though the offer of the Canadian government to finance the expedition if he would carry the Canadian flag and plant it on any lands discovered, was finally accepted for him by the society. He told of one of his six ships which carried the adventurous young men whom he expected to accompany him on the test trip across the ice, armed with rifles, ammunitions, fishing equipment, etc., and how that ship was lost leaving him a company of scientists who refused to take the risks of such an expedition; how he was finally forced to fall back on two Alaskan trappers who agreed to go for $25 a day apiece.

When he cut loose from the ship every member of which expected to see him return defeated in his expectations within 30 days, he started with six dogs and one sledge packed with arms, ammunition, harpoons, axes, etc. Having room to spare he packed 30 days' provisions, and still having room for a few books of poetry and astronomy. To the officer second in command Lieutenant Stefansson gave instructions to send a ship to meet him at Banks island in 12 months as he expected to be gone a year, which instructions were received with entire scepticism, and when he and his companions had not returned in three months the world was notified that he had perished. And so in public opinion he remained dead for a year. Meanwhile the party travelled north over the ice and everything went as they expected with an abundance of life in the area supposed to be devoid of life. After 56 days of travel, finding no land, they turned east, southeast and south, and landed on Banks island just as Stefansson had expected to do without having missed a meal and with every dog as fat as a pig. Their food was 90 per cent seal and 10 per cent polar bear. Bell-shaped snow houses which they were able to construct of blocks of snow chopped out of snow banks with about 45 minutes' work, made comfortable shelters in which the temperature could be raised by their lamps to 60 degrees.

Explorers Obsessed by Theories

In explaining this misconception of the previous explorers in regard to the marine life of the north, Mr. Stefansson said they had simply accepted the statements of the Esquimaux that seals can only be found near the land, and they had never discovered their mistake because they had kept away from the warm open water. The men of Greeley's party died of hunger, the 75 splendid men who accompanied Sir John Franklin perished of starvation and 20 or 30 of them were eaten by their companions, and underneath their feet on that ice field was the greatest abundance of food. Said he "They were so obsessed by a theory that they were not in a condition to see the things around them.

The pictures exhibited at the close of the lecture were most interesting, but were shown hurriedly as the explorer had to make a train and was pressed for time.

WANTS ONLY LIVE ONES IN GLENDALE

Editor Glendale Press—Do you realize that a big moneyed corporation is trying to get a foothold on one of our most beautiful streets with the idea of making a cemetery out of it? An ordinance comes before the city council for action May 26, to allow a cemetery to exist right across the street from one of our schoolhouses.

Wake up and realize just what this means. Our school board has invested money in school land down there. People have built their homes along there because they take pride and there because they take pride and delight in the Tropico hills and those hills are a pride and delight to everybody living in Glendale.

Do you want to see those hills dotted with graves? Do you want to see one of our main boulevards, beautiful Glendale avenue, spoiled for home-building and given over to the burial of the dead?

Do you want to see your children go to school and study and play in the shadow of the graveyard?

The moneyed men back of this Los Angeles corporation know that it is now or never. Glendale avenue will be built solid with beautiful homes if allowed to develop naturally. Those Tropico hills will be a beauty spot forever with homes. Now is the time to show your colors, whether you are a friend of Glendale or want to stand in with the big moneyed men.

Why make a cemetery any more prominent than can be helped? They don't need a frontage on one of our main streets. We don't want to look up at those hills and see graves, and you know they can never be hid.

Let us bring more home-builders here—not dead ones.

What do you say? Are you a live-wire booster for Glendale or a dead one?

GOOD GOVERNMENT LEAGUE OF GLENDALE

Editor Glendale Press: Having been prominently published in a Los Angeles evening paper of yesterday's date, an article which makes it appear that the Glendale Good Government League was formed for the purpose of combating a Sunday blue law issue in Glendale, which issue, in fact, does not exist, makes it imperative for this organization to emphatically disclaim any such purpose and to deplore any effort being made toward such a movement which undoubtedly would prove a set-back to our city.

Resolutions setting forth the purposes of this organization will be published next week.

Mother of Chaplin Comes to America

"Behold My First Sweetheart," Says Charlie—Film Comedian Boyishly Happy Over Mother's Visit—She Was Formerly an Actress in England

LOS ANGELES, May 13.—Charlie Chaplin's "first sweetheart has come overseas to be with him. She is the woman who is credited by his brother Syd as the one "who did more than anyone else to make the film comedian what he is today."

She is a modest little woman, this "first sweetheart" of Charlie's. She dresses very plainly, has little to say beyond expressing her appreciation of America, and keeps pretty much to herself when she isn't with the "movie" star.

Charlie's "first sweetheart" has known him longer than anyone in the film world, or longer than anybody in the theatrical realm, where he appeared before he got into the "movies." It isn't the least bit of exaggeration to say that she knows him better than anybody in the whole wide world.

For this "first sweetheart, you see, is Mrs. Hannah Chaplin, Charlie's mother, and consequently she has had a legitimate interest in his every move since he was born at Fontainbleau, France, April 16, 1889. Born in France, but of decidedly English stock.

Charlie hums and whistles and cuts little capers not at all in "the business" of his present film as he goes about his studio these days.

"I'm very, very happy," he said, as he talked of his mother while resting in an elaborately decorated little den. "My mother has always meant a great deal to me. I meant to bring her over from England to America years ago. Then the world war started and she couldn't make the passage. She was nervous from the wartime Zeppelin raids on London and couldn't get over until recently.

Adds to the Lustre of Flowers

"It is a wonderfully fine day today. Gosh! but the air is so sweet. The flowers never seemed to have the odor they now possess until mother came to be with her boys. She's a great little mother, my mother is, and——"

The lips of the man who is said to earn more than $1,000,000 a year by working 120 days annually, quivered a little and he opened a cigaret case and took out a "smoke." Touching a match to it, he rose and walked over to an ornate fireplace.

"What do you think of my studio?" he said, apparently changing the subject to regain his pose. "Presentable little place, isn't it?"

The correspondent, who has seen practically every film studio worthy of the name in America, agreed that it was, for the whole establishment, covering about seven acres, is kept in perfect order. Not even a burned match stub is allowed to remain on one of the immaculately white walks or velvet-like lawns, if a caretaker sees it.

Charlie spends much of his spare time reading works on political and social economy. He is well versed in the politics of Great Britain, Germany, France or Italy, or the woes of Russia, in so far as they have been mirrored in American and English weeklies, as the average crossroads politician is regarding the happenings at Turner's Corners or Hickory Point.

Charlie as a Student

He talked for almost an hour on the after-effects of the war. He showed an amazing knowledge of the financial affairs of the allied and associated nations. He is optimistic regarding Europe's future and believes political conditions there will become settled soon, and thereby help stabilize the affairs of the whole world.

Speaking of their mother, Syd Chaplin said: "Mother is the one who made Charlie a successful mimic. When we were little boys living in bitter poverty in London, mother used to brighten the drab days for us. She would point out, for instance, the incongruous manners of an old chap who worked in a laundry and who took his best suit out of pawn on Saturday night to meet his 'Moll,' and bright and early Monday morning would promptly pledge it again.

"'Look at him,' mother would say. 'He's walking way out near the curb for fear of getting the suit dirty and losing a shilling on the value of the pledge. Now watch him; he's not used to gloves and he wants to put his hands in his pockets.' And the next day Charlie would have a perfect imitation of the old laundryman for mother's approval.

Charlie got his famous kidney feet walk by imitating a poor old fellow with a bulbous nose who held the horses for cabbies so they could get a drink in a London pub, or bar, as such places were once called in America before certain portions of the English language became obsolete here.

Mother an Artist

"We come of a theatrical family. Mother used to be with an opera company in England, singing in Gilbert and Sullivan productions. Her stage name was Lily Harley. She sang some selections from 'Patience' the day she arrived in Los Angeles. And how good her melodious voice sounded to Charlie and I, lined up on either side of mother at the piano, like a couple of schoolboys. Our father, who died a good many years ago, was a celebrated protean actor on the English variety stage.

"The average person would naturally suppose mother was very proud of the world-wide recognition which has been given to Charlie. Strange to say, he has been somewhat of a disappointment to her, for she wanted him to be a clergyman. She has seen but one of his films, and she sat through only half of that."

But anyhow, Charlie Chaplin's "first sweetheart" is having the time of her life looking over her own beautiful home, which is drenched in golden sunshine the whole day, and in giving orders ot her chauffeur, footman, maid and head housekeeper.

VATICAN ARMED FOR DEFENSE

By EDWARD C. STRUTT
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

ROME, May 13.—Colonel Repond, commander of the Pope's Swiss Guard, has resigned and the announcement has caused quite a stir in Vatican circles, as it is most unusual; indeed, I believe, unprecedented, for a commander of the Swiss Guard to abandon his post, which is considered a lifelong appointment. Up till the Pontificate of Pius X., two Swiss families, the Barons Meyer von Schauensee and Pfyffer von Altishofen, used to alternate in the command, and this lasted for several centuries.

But when Baron Leopold Meyer von Schauensee died, the pope found himself at a loss to appoint his successor. In fact, Baron Pfyffer von Altishofen, on whom by ancient right his choice should have fallen, had long since abandoned the Vatican world for the world of business, in which he has proved eminently successful, being closely connected with the Ritz hotel in London and with the Hotel Excelsior in Rome. The late Baron Meyer von Schauensee's eldest son, known in Roman and cosmopolitan society as "Baron Fritz," was equally ineligible, being a well-known 'man about town,' who, by the way, has married an American wife.

Retired Swiss Appointed

Pope Pius X. then decided to confer the command of his Swiss Guards on a retired officer of the Swiss army, Colonel Repond, who at once started to reorganize the corps in a truly military spirit. Discipline was very lax among the gaudily uniformed guards (they still wear varicolored uniforms in which yellow, black and red predominate, supposed to have been designed by Michael Angelo), they were very seldom drilled, and when not on duty at the bronze gate or in the papal apartments, always picturesque with their long halberds, their time was spent within the Vatican walls and around the Swiss tavern, famous for its excellent white wines. With the advent of Colonel Repond, a change came over the spirit of their work. The new commander was determined to transform this purely ornamental corps into a thoroughly efficient military unit and in a certain measure he succeeded.

Colonel Repond began his work of reform by discarding the useless old rifles with which the Swiss Guards were armed, replacing them with the most modern weapons. There are spacious lawns and fields within the Vatican enclosure, and here Colonel Repond established a rifle range, where his men had an opportunity of confirming their traditional skill in shooting. Pius X., was rather annoyed at the racket when it first started, although only a faint echo pierced the massive walls of the apostolic palace, but he soon got accustomed to it and used to joke mildly about the new commander's military zeal. A regular martinet for discipline, Colonel Repond almost drilled his easy-going subordinates off their feet, and at one time something like a mutiny threatened. Many of the men left in disgust, and fresh recruits had to be summoned from Switzerland to take their places.

Fortress of the Vatican

Colonel Repond's fixed idea was that the Vatican must be placed, so far as possible, in an efficient state of defense, and in view of the present stormy times and communist outbursts, he is perhaps not far wrong. In spite of the Italian government's vigilance, nothing would be easier than a surprise attack by a handful of desperadoes, and most tragic consequences might ensue before help arrived, if the Vatican were not able to defend itself against a first rush. It is extremely unlikely that such a thing should happen, but Colonel Repond not wishing to take any chances, has drawn up a carefully devised scheme of defense by which the Swiss Guard, together with the Palatine Guard and papal gendarmes, armed with modern machine guns and rifles, could hold the Vatican without difficulty, at least for some time.

Pope Benedict XV., who entertains the greatest affection and esteem for Colonel Repond, has vainly tried to induce him to reconsider his decision. But the commander, pleading ill health and fatigue, remains firm in his resignation stand. The holy father is now greatly embarrassed to find a worthy successor to this zealous and very capable officer.

Pursuer Is Pursued

BOSTON, May 13.—Life is full of ups and downs, according to Giacomo Brundo, who, as an outraged husband, pursued his eloping wife and another man from Rochester, N. Y., to East Boston, only to be himself arraigned in the East Boston Court.

Brundo was charged with carrying a loaded revolver without a permit. His wife, Jennie, and Gastino Cinicolo were arrested. All three pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued, bail of $500 each being furnished.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE INJURED BY TEMPER

Haste and Intolerance Hinder American Exports to Latin America

CLEVELAND, May 13.—That our foreign trade is subject to a great disadvantage in its competition with the foreign trade of our European commercial competitors, was the opinion of Dr. Guillermo A. Sherwell, of the Inter-American High Commission, in his address before the National Foreign Trade convention now meeting in Cleveland.

"Our foreign trade," said Dr. Sherwell, who accompanied Secretary of State Colby on his trip to South America, "is carried on in a relatively more haphazard way than European foreign trade is conducted, and we have less system, less knowledge and perhaps less desire to establish system and acquire knowledge.

"If I were asked what is the main fault with the American foreign trader, I should say that it consists of our shortness of vision. We cannot see beyond a short space of time. We are impatient; we want immediate results; we cannot wait: our bankers want money today rather than the business of the future, and our buyers and sellers want large profits right way rather than a sound, permanent market.

"Besides this fault, I think there is another almost as detrimental, consisting of our sacred respect, almost verging on adoration, for the kind of god, fetish or shibboleth: 'Our rules.' I want our merchants to be warned against this god. I want them to abandon and to forget it, and to put on their altars an opposite god, which is the only god of foreign trade: 'Your rules.'

"We have had great success in recent years, and we think it was due to ourselves, forgetting that it was due mainly to the very abnormal conditions through which the world has been passing. Now that our foreign trade is shrinking, we raise this question: 'Why is it diminishing?' There are two main reasons: Because we do not know and do not wnt to know, and because we are still pleasing ourselves and not our customers."

Discussing market possibilities in Latin America, Dr. Sherwell said: "We must realize that the possibilities of assimilation of certain merchandise by certain places are in some cases not elastic, and that a market might easily be oversupplied. Modern agricultural machinery will have a constantly broadening market throughout South America, and everybody will understand the reason for this, since steel factories in that part of the world are possibilities of the most remote future. On the other hand, the market for cotton is becoming smaller every year. Our exports of frozen meats and of canned vegetables to Latin America will probably diminish."

UNDERWRITERS ARE BAFFLED

Uniform Ocean Bill of Lading and Greater Resposibility of Carriers Urged

CLEVELAND, May 13.—"As a result of the war, property rights are no longer respected," said William D. Winter, Atlantic Mutual Insurance company, in addressing the Cleveland Foreign Trade convention this morning.

"Many people, both here and abroad, seem to consider that as a prerequisite of their business they were entitled to a portion of the goods which passed through their hands. Owing to the shortage of labor in the transportation services both on shore and on sea, discipline was destroyed and the workmen obtained a degree of power which prevented the enforcement of disciplinary methods which at least would have discouraged this new and growing band of criminals.

"The steamship companies, upon whom the burden of this hazard had rested, had become virtual dictators in overseas commerce, and, quick to see the advantages to them of insurance against the pilferage hazard, introduced clauses in their bills of lading which negatived in large measure their common law liability for property in their custody. Their responsibility thus being minimized, they relaxed their vigilance over property in their custody and thus indirectly encouraged the growing evil.

"But the transportation companies were not alone to blame for this evil, for the shortsighted policy of the ordinary merchant in failing properly to pack his commodity and in using his packing case as an advertising medium, did most to encourage the dishonest workmen who handled these shipments. Light, imperfect cases which advertised well-known brands of shoes, or socks, or soap, or watches or other desirable articles of everyday use, were a constant temptation to the longshoremen or steamship hands.

"No sovereign remedy for the evil has yet been found, but if the old responsibility of the carriers could be reestablished, if a uniform bill of lading could be adopted which would clearly set forth this liability, if the merchant would spend a portion of the premium which he now spends for theft and pilferage insurance in providing a better container for his products, if he would exercise a little care in determining the character of the steamship company by which he ships his goods and of the buyer to whom they are consigned, a real remedy might be found."

Edward Martindel, at one time leading man for Mary Pickford, will have an important role in Gladys Walton's current Universal feature, "What Can You Expect?"

WOULD-BE EDISON INVENTS A "STILL"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 13.—John Cooper's inventive ingenuity by which he used his washing machine for a still and his wringer for a wine press has been revealed in Judge George West's court.

Police raided Cooper's house and found several bottles of dark-colored liquid in the pantry, a wash boiler full of mash, raisin remains in the bottom of the washing machine, and red stains on the clothes wringer. The liquor when tested showed 44 per cent alcohol.

"I put a stove under the washing machine and put the machine in operation," said Cooper.

"I squeezed all the 'life' out of the raisins by running them through the wringer. My wife whimpered a little because it discolored the clothes," the prisoner added.

"Thomas Edison, Jr., I fine you $200 and sixty days in the workhouse," said the judge.

The neighbor's chickens are heartily in favor of open gardens openly arrived at.

Delightful May Fete At Central Ave. School

Feature of Occasion Was Carnival of Flowers Staged by Pupils of Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Grades—Takes Place on Lawn in Front of School Building

In a lovely garden setting, which would have seemed heaven to many a slum child, Central avenue school staged, Thursday afternoon, the first outdoor fete it has ever held. It took place around the flag pole on one section of the lawn in front of the vine-covered school building, flanked by trees and shrubbery. On the opposite grass plot, in automobiles on Central avenue and on the steps of the building the audience was grouped, consisting of mothers and friends of the school.

The big feature was the carnival of flowers put on by pupils of the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. It was an exceedingly pretty spectacle, but only the mothers who assisted with the costuming realized how great had been the task of Mrs. E. E. Kent, who directed the affair and planned the costumes, and her assistant Mrs. E. E. Harwood, who aided in preparing them.

Miss Annie L. McIntyre, principal of the school, presided, and in the course of the entertainment made a little speech in which she voiced her appreciation of the fine work done by the teachers associated with her, especially mentioning Mrs. Kent and Mrs. Harwood, Mrs. Miner, who was the accompanist, Miss Livesy, Miss Perkins and Miss Edwards, who helped in a variety of ways.

Superintendent White also spoke briefly on the coming school bond election.

The program opened at 1:30 with a Maypole exercise put on by the kindergarten department. The first grade then gave some action songs such as "What Shall We Do When We Go Out." Dramatic activities were demonstrated by pupils of the second grade who acted out a birthday party.

Little Marian Morgan was crowned Queen of the May and made a gentle ruler.

Still another queen presided over the Carnival of the Flowers, as Queen California Poppy. This part was assigned to Janice Brown whose coronation robe was of poppy color and who wore a gilt crown and carried a gilt scepter. She sang a solo and was attended by a group of knights costumed in brown and gold decorated with Grecian scallops. These knights were Clifford and Paul Koenig, Oscar Newby, Ennis Olmsted, Frank Connor and Howard Dunn. There were also four pages arrayed in royal purple and gold costumes and these were Roswell Bassell, Charles Heustis, Edwin Dodds and Stacy Hearshman. The pages announced the different parts in the Carnival of Flowers in which all the children who participated represented flowers or greenery.

Between solo numbers were choruses put on by a group of children representing daisies, asters and vines. The asters wore hats made of lavender-colored petals with green crowns, the daisies were of white petals with yellow crowns, and the boys who represented vines wore garlands of greenery. These sang "Song of Joy," "California" and other numbers. Children in this group were: Asters—Emily Painter, Joy Person, Manette Kraft, Betty Brown, Sarah Zack, Elizabeth Coffman, Celia Logan, Elinor Poore, Lydia Pampaian. Daisies were: Lucile Kemnitz, Hazel Howard, Billy Galbraith, May Cunningham, Johanna Michel, William Williams, Martha Jones, Rosalita Ruggiero, Margaret Farmer and De Forest Riehl. Representing vines were: Ivan Robinson, Lockwood Frost, Robert Harris, Ruper Nesselrod, Walo Winger, Robert Matthews, George McClammy, Byron Kull, Gilbert McDonald, Arthur Kilpatrick, Frank Michel, Frederick Griggs, James Pampaian, Louis Vierick, Bernard Kemnitz, William Newby, Thomas Crawford, Elliott Wyman, Jack Farmer, Frank Gerl, Edward Hoedinghaus, Charles Kausen, Charles Amey, James Ferry, Vincent Kemnitz, John Kemnitz, Orville Shimel, George Amey.

Evelyn Rockwell, appropriately garbed to represent Yellow Jasmine, sang a solo and around her buzzed a bumblebee in the person of Richard Sternberg, dressed in black decorated with bright gilt spots, wearing wings and with feelers projecting from the cap. Then came the song of The Leaves, represented by Hartley Person, Francis Payne, Rosario Mirano, Janet West, Harriet Colton and Grace Hoffman in dark green costumes. Immediately following came a group of trumpet flowers in gay red and gold costumes who gave the summons to revelry. These were Robert Whitton, Harmon Bunting, Lloyd Morgan, Grenade Wilson and William Thompson.

Next came the mosses, gowned in gray, who sang of the Sad Sea Waves—Margaret Kraft, May Goetz, Margery Packard, Evelyn Chase, Bettie Goodrich and Alta Downs.

Rose Bagley then appeared in solo as "The Strawberry Blossom," dressed in white edged with strawberry-shaped scallops with touches of green at the waist. She was crowned with roses.

A chorus of blue and white violets dressed to suggest these flowers was sung by Ruth Campbell, Elizabeth Holtman, Mary Elizabeth Campbell, Winifred Hunt, Katherine Brown, Lela Smith and Edith Elliott.

Water Lilies were next introduced and this pretty group included Mildred Prager, Rita Schrader, Nancy Kilgore, Frances Farwell, Cornelia Hollingsworth and Ruth Bender.

Elizabeth Woltman then sang an invitation to the breezes who wore paper costumes of green and white. In their proper persons they were Louise Hoyt, Opal Hopper, Eleanor Harris, Carol Toll, Sam Dunbar and Rollin Edwins. These sang a lullaby. The closing songs, announced by the four pages was sung by the entire company of flowers massed in a group around the throne.

The list of patrons and patronesses for the affair includes Messrs. and Mmes. Roscoe A. Puffer, C. E. Norton, Oliver O. Clark, J. E. Phillips, L. G. Scovern, W. E. Farlander, E. L. Schuyler, Mark Russell, Alexander Mitchell, O. E. Von Oven, W. H. Verity, Alphonso W. Tower, T. W. Preston, Dr. and Mrs. John Douglas Camerer, Mmes. J. M. Border, Minnie Patterson and E. W. W. Hayward.

He asks for the apprehension of the deserters.

BEAUTIFUL FESTIVAL BY SHAKESPEARE SECTION

Scenes From Shakespearean Plays, Musical Numbers and Fancy Dances

BENEFIT CLUB BUILDING

Mrs. May Howard Raiston Will Have Charge of the Dramatic Work

Plans for a beautiful Shakesperean festival, to be given on Wednesday afternoon, May 25, by the Shakespeare section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, were announced by Mrs. O. E. Von Oven, curator of the section, this morning.

Scenes from Shakesperean plays will be given by members of the section; these will be interspersed with musical numbers, fancy dances and selections by a Shakesperian reader.

It is planned to give the banishment scene from "As You Like It," two scenes from "Taming of the Shrew" and the sleepwalking scene from "Macbeth." Mrs. Mary Howard Ralston is directing the dramatic work.

Tea will be served during the social session following the entertainment, whose proceeds will go to swell the club building fund.

PREDICT FURTHER RISE IN OIL PRICES

(By International News Service)

OIL CITY, Pa., May 13.—Oil having gone up a couple of notches, as exclusively forecasted by the International News Service correspondent a weeks before the first boost, speculation as to when the next rise will occur is in full sway among oil producers here.

That another rise will occur perhaps before the end of next week is being confidently predicted. To this is added the further prediction that Pennsylvania crude, before many weeks, will reach or pass the $4 mark. A survey of conditions in the producing and refining field here leads to the conclusion that there is good ground for forecasting further advances.

When the price paid for Pennsylvania crude oil dropped below $5 producers at once cancelled all drilling plans not already under way or not contracted. By the time the price had reached $4 a barrel producers who could at all afford to had ceased selling to refiners, holding their production either in the pipe lines and paying storage charges, or running it into their own storage tanks.

Just what this meant and why it has caused the price of crude to start upward again can best be conceived when it is stated that a single producer, said to control an output of close to 10,000 barrels a month, has sold no oil for about two months. Add to this curtailment the output from hundreds of smaller leases throughout the field and it is not overestimating it to state that sales were curtailed the past two months at a rate equivalent to more than 400,000 barrels of Pennsylvania crude a year.

Activities Point to Third Rise.

Curtailment at this rate, added to the fact that for some years prior to last January reserve stocks of Pennsylvana crude had been steadily declining, in itself a sufficient explanation for the advance in price. When to this is added the well-authenticated information that the Seep Purchasing Agency, which supplies the Standard Oil Company and its subsidiaries with its crude, and which quotes prices for oil generally understood to be first approved by the Standard, in boosting the price to $3.25 has done little more than top the price many independent refiners already had been paying, it is not difficult to foresee, a third rise in the very near future. The first rise was quickly followed by a second to $3.50, in each instance the advance being 25 cents per barrel.

Another factor that is expected to further force prices upward is that the present increase in prices has not stimulated selling of crude materially, as is only natural. It is invariably difficult to induce people to sell any commodity on a rising market. Oil producers, justifying their refusal to sell at the $3 price because this represented a figure below actual cost of operations, point to the fact that it costs more than $3.50 a barrel to produce crude oil now, and those who have been holding their oil in storage are mostly planning on continuing to do so.

PUBLISH NEWSPAPER IN FLIGHT OF PLANES

(By International News Service)

LONDON, May 13.—Initial trials will soon be made in the publication of a daily newspaper from airplanes in flight—a new phase of journalism.

Airplanes will leave Paris and London daily. Machines from Paris will print editions of the Aerial Mail in French and those from England will print their copies in English. Batches of the paper will be dropped by parachute in Boulogne, Rouen, Amiens and other cities where there are subscribers, says the Daily Mail.

The machines will be equipped with wireless in addition to complete printing plants and will issue news of political, financial, sports and that of a general character.

May-Day Program at Pacific Avenue School

Doll Show Was Delight of Children and Very Interesting to Older Folks—Roses and Ferns Make Grounds Veritable Summer Garden—Fine Program

Roses and ferns in profusion transformed the court at the Pacific avenue school grounds into a veritable summr garden yesterday afternoon, when pupils of the first, second and third grades and kindergarten gave a program there that packed the enclosure with proud, admiring mothers.

The fine program included a recitation, "Spring," by dainty Edna Paull; a group of nursery rhymes acted out by the kindergarten; "Ten Little Sunbonnet Babies and Ten Little oBys," by members of the first grade; a song, "Eight Little Dandelions," by the second grade and chorus; a recitation, "Lovable Child," by Edna Paull; and last but not least, a May pole dance by girls of the third grade.

A doll show was the delight of the children; dressed in their Sunday best, there stood in their appointed place at the front of the court, large dolls, small dolls, baby dolls, lady dolls, character dolls, and even a boy doll or two as well as an array of kewpies, with several toy dogs and fine Teddy bears on guard. When the children had inspected this fine show they were treated to punch and wafers and dismissed to their homes.

Their P.-T. A. mothers, meanwhile, held a business meeting in the school. Superintendent R. D. White announced the Teachers' Club play on June 4, and urged the mothers present to vote for the school bonds on May 24.

The president, Mrs. Lucas, announced that the P.-T. A. May festival on May 20, will be held on the grounds of the intermediate school intead of on the lawn of the John Robert White home.

Mrs. Hanning gave the following report of the nominating committee: For president, Mrs. Mae Rosenberg; vice-president, Mrs. William Farlander; secretary, Mrs. Grover Adams; treasurer, Mrs. George Moore; historian, Mrs. Ross Russell; parliamentarian, Mrs. Leslie Tronsier.

Punch and wafers were served in the court at the close of the business session.

U. S. DEAD TO STAY ON FOREIGN SOIL

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 13.—More than thirty thousand bodies of American soldiers will lie forever in French soil. Four bits of French soil have been chosen as the final resting places for the bodies—four bits of France that "will remain forever America." The permanent fields of honor will be Romagne, Belleau, Flanders Field near Bony, and Suresnes on the outskirts of Paris.

A commission headed by Colonel C. C. Pierce, had arrived from the United States and approved the choice of the four permanent cemeteries. The commission, which is composed of W. M. Kendall, C. M. Moore, James Greenleaf and Major George Gibbs, architects and artists, are inspecting the sites with a view to recommendations for beautifying these fields to make them the most beautiful burying places in Europe.

The Romagne field will hold the majority of the bodies of men killed in the Argonne fighting—14,000 in all; the Belleau field on the hillside near Belleau Wood will contain 7,000 bodies; Suresness will hold 4,300, including many bodies of wounded who died in Paris hospitals, while Flanders Field will contain 2,100.

At present the American Graves Registration Service is engaged in disinterring the bodies intended for shipment back to the United States. Up to the present 14,646 bodies have been disinterred and shipped. Nearly five thousand bodies are lying at the ports awaiting transport. By October all the bodies requested for shipment back home will have been shipped. Then the Graves Registration Service will begin the task of concentrating the remaining bodies in the four permanent fields.

This task will occupy nearly all of next year. The size of the task—and incidentally an idea of the debt of the allies to America—is more vividly shown by a map in the office of Major C. L. Sampson of the Graves Registration Department than could be told in words.

At every point where the body of an American soldier was buried was stuck a red pin. The map which comprises all of France, Belgium and Luxemburg is literally studded with red pins—from the Pyrennes to the Argonne, from the Alpes-Maritimes to the English Channel—the soil of France is sprinkled with American dead. Altogether there are 550 pins on the map—meaning that at 550 different points there were buried American soldiers, sometimes a lonely grave, sometimes a dozen, sometimes hundreds. Many of the graves are hundreds of miles from the fighting lines. At these places wounded soldiers died in hospitals or soldiers on leave died and were buried on the spot. The line of American communications from the ports to the fighting lines can be traced across France by the row of red pins indicating burial places.

More than 400 Americans are engaged in various parts of France and Belgium in disinterring the bodies for shipment. By October about 45,000 bodies will have been shipped. The nearest of kin of 19,861 have specifically requested that the bodies remain in France. The others for which there is no specific request home will remain also.

When finally completed the permanent cemeteries will resemble the National Cemeteries in the United States—long, precise rows of grassy mounds with spacious walks between. At the head of each grave will be a stone marker with the name and organization of the soldier lying beneath.

The permenant fields are being designed as shrines for Americans in Europe for all time to come. Already hundreds of friends and relatives of the fallen are flocking to the graves.

The American Army will probably have a lower percentage of unidentified dead than any allied country. The Graves Registration Service expects eventually to identify all except a very few bodies.

The Memorial Day committee of the American Legion is already preparing for the observance of Memorial Day when a wreath will be placed on every American grave in France.

Carter De Haven Will Rest

Carter De Haven is planning to take a rest away from the glare of the camera's eye. When he finishes his current picture, "My Lady Friends," he and his family will depart from Los Angeles for New York, there to remain during the summer months. "My Lady Friends" is his last picture he will make under his present contract with First National. He will not renew it, but intends to form a company of his own.

MORE LIQUOR BEING DRANK BY YOUTHS

(By International News Service)

DENVER, May, 13.—That the liquor habit, instead of being curbed by prohibition, is increasing, especially amongst young girls, was the declaration in a sermon here by the Rev. Hugh L. McMenamin, rector of the Immaculate Conception cathedral.

"Young men, and more particularly young women, are drinking alcohol more freely today than ever before," the clergyman said. "In times past young women considered it vulgar and degrading to drink liquor. Today they consider it a gay adventure. And small wonder, since in too many cases parents set the example."

Rev. McMenamin made a strong plea to parents for closer supervision of the social activities of their children, urging fathers and mothers to assume proper responsibility for the conduct of their offspring.

"Yours is the duty," he said, "to shield your children from danger, not by precept only, but by example. You readily grasp the idea that your neighbor's child is in danger, but you feel that your own boy or girl may toy with the glass and dash it away before he drinks.

Youth and the Unholy Current.

"The world is pleasure mad. Youth is swept on by the unholy current, and is sadly handicapped in its journey towards eternity.

"Parents permit their children to go to dance halls, four out of five of which are open pathways to hell. Their child may roam the streets at will, and go unchaperoned on automobile rides, the destination of which is unknown even to the girl herself.

"Time was when young men and young women invited guests to their homes to meet a friend or two to listen to some choice music, to discuss books and authors, but today the usual inducement held out to young guests is a bottle or two of alcohol, of which all partake too freely, and then spend the night in dancing to the strains of a jazzing phonograph."

The sermon came in the wake of an investigation by school and juvenile court officials that disclosed what was characterized as a "shocking condition of immorality" among high school girls and boys.

Four boys and two girls, all under seventeen years of age, were recently expelled from school when they confssed to an all-night orgy in a mountain cabin during which liquor was drunk.

There are about 3,000 tons of paris green used in this country annually.

RULING STRIKES AT CONGRESS' POWER

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Supreme Court decision which has resulted in the absolute freedom of United States Senator Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, from confinement in the federal penitentiary for two years for violation of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act is considered as having a direct bearing on the power of Congress to regulate primaries for the nomination of Federal officers.

It also raises the issue of a possible necessity of a constitutional amendment to provide Congress with the authority to create a national primary for the nomination of candidates for President.

Though the nine members of the United States Supreme Court arrived at the same conclusion through widely divergent channels of legal reasoning, they stood unanimously agreed as to the reversal of conviction in the Newberry case and in declaring the Corrupt Practices Act void.

As a result of the decision sixteen other defendants in the same case will also go free.

INDIANS TO TAKE PART IN FESTIVAL

(By International News Service)

PLYMOUTH, Mass., May 13.—There will be "heap big" doings at Sound Pond this Summer. Through the efforts of William S. Kyle, a local manufacturer and chairman of the town tercentenary celebration committee, a company of Passamaquoddy Indians from Eastport, Maine, led by Chief William Neptune, will arrive in town next month and take up their residence at the pond, participating in the Pilgrim exercises to be held this Summer.

Bicycle Boom in England

LONDON, May 13.—There is a boom in cycling. Many touring clubs have been revived, and in this week-end exodus from London the "push" bicycle was holding its own in numbers with the motorcycle and motorcar.

NAVY OPENS NEW WIRELESS CIRCUITS

(By International News Service)

SAN. FRANCISCO, May 13.—Opening of an important transpacific commercial and Government radio circuit, which will eventually reach points in the interior of Southern Asia, never before reached by radio circuits from the United States and to points that cannot at present be reached by cable circuits, has been announced by the United States Naval Communications Service.

The new circuit will carry traffic from the United States via the navy's high power stations here to the interior of Indo-China. The new service was made possible by an agreement between the Naval Communications Service and the Communications Service of the French Indo-China government.

Negotiations for the opening of the above service have been under way for nearly a year and the assurance of excellent service has been made possible only by the recent completion of a new United States naval 500 kilowatts arc station at Los Banos, Cavite and the completion of a 500 kilowatts French station at Saigon.

OYSTERS ARE BLAMED FOR TYPHOID FEVER

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 13.—Oysters not only are responsible for a very large percentage of cases of typhoid fever, but claim a very large number of mortalities from the same disease, according to two French physicians, Drs. Courtois-Suffit and Bourgeois. In a study ranging over a period of eighteen months they found that 25 per cent of the cases of typhoid had their origin in diseased oysters and that nearly 90 per cent of the persons who died from typhoid were victims who had contracted the disease by eating oysters.

A sure sign of ill manners is to talk loud. If you are in a habit when you go into a store of talking in such a loud voice that the janitor in the cellar hears you, cut it out. All ill-bred people talk so loud they drown out everyone in the room.—Arkansas Thomas Cat.

OIL DISCOVERED IN FAR NORTH

(By International News Service)

CALGARY, Alta., May 13.—A. S. F. Rankin, the first man back from the Fort Norman oil fields, on the Mackenzie River, since Winter locked the trails of the north, is convinced that hunting a fortune at the top of the continent is not a poor man's adventure.

"I would advise no man to start," he said, "unless he is strong physically and has plenty of grub, clothing and money. It is a hard journey, in any kind of weather. But the oil is there—no doubt about that—and it is going to give the world a new crop of bonanza millionaires."

Rankin went in and came out by dog team. He staked a section and bought another. Forty claims, he declared, were staked during the Winter around the 30,000 acres on which the discovery well of 1,500 barrels a day is located. Of the 2,600 miles he covered, he mushed 2,100 on snowshoes and rode 500 on his sled.

"I left Edmonton November, 25," he said, "and went to Fort McMurray by rail. There I hired an Indian guide and a dog team and struck out for Fort Norman, 1,300 miles away. My sled was loaded with provisions and blankets. My only clothes were those on my back. The cold was intense. It was 90 degrees below when I struck Great Slave Lake. I saw no game of any sort except partridges. I lived on bacon, beans, bannock, jam and tea. There was plenty of wood for cooking. I slept on spruce boughs by roaring fires.

"I usually made thirty and forty miles a day. The Mackenzie River, where I expected the easiest sledding was the most difficult part of my journey. The ice had jammed into hills and ridges thirty feet high. I reached the well February 6. I stayed there three days and spent a week at Fort Norman, fifty-seven miles away. I got back to Fort McMurray March 26, having made the 1200 miles in 37 days."

Rankin said one of the biggest stampedes in history would start for the Mackenzie from Peace River and the Athbasca country some time in May but that few of the prospectors would reach the oil fields before the middle of June.

The sacred tree at Anuradhapura, in Northwestern Ceylon, is said to be the oldest historically authenticated tree in the world.

POLICEWOMEN DO NOT CARRY CLUBS

(By International News Service)

BOSTON, May 13.—Every man upon the force wears a watch and chain, of course, together with other distinguishing devices, but not so Boston's new women police.

Quietly dressed, unobtrusive in demeanor, they move in mysterious ways, their duties to perform, according to Mrs. Margaret MacHugh, one of the appointees.

Here are some of the things the policewomen do and don't do, as outlined by Mrs. MacHugh:

They don't carry guns.

They don't wear uniforms.

They carry their badges inside their purses.

They never call attention to themselves if it can be avoided.

They make arrests only when necessary.

They may in truth be called "plain-clothes women," as their costumes are simple in design and preferably dark.

Mrs. MacHugh delivered herself of an epigram. "Common sense and kindness," said she, "are better than the strong arm and a club."

Mrs. MacHugh who was chief night operator in the Brighton telephone exchange, spent her first day off duty on the Common.

"I wouldn't describe the Common as the evil place that some good people see fit to call it," said she. "It is very well ordered, with well-mannered people, young and old, enjoying the fresh air and sunshine. I saw many young women with male friends, improving the opportunities for talk and companionship which the Common affords. It is fit, however, that a matron should be about, like a mother at home, keeping a kindly eye on all."

TWO ARE KILLED IN FRENCH BULL RING

(By International News Service)

PARIS, May 13.—Although bullfighting in France is prohibited, clandestine fights often take place in the South. When caught the offenders usually pay fines which compared with their gate receipts are of little consequence. But more severe measures are likely to be taken now that a bull in the Salius de Giraud arena became suddenly enraged and charged at the spectators, killing two outright and seriously injuring two others.
